Dr. Reiner Fuellmich

The New Nuremberg Trials 2021

Breaking-News.ca

A team of over 1,000 lawyers and over 10,000 medical experts led by Dr. Reiner Fuellmich have begun legal proceedings against the CDC, WHO & the Davos Group for crimes against humanity. Fuellmich and his team present the faulty PCR test and the order for doctors to label any comorbidity death as a Covid death as fraud. The PCR test was never designed to detect pathogens and is 100% faulty at 35 cycles. All the PCR tests overseen by the CDC are set at 37 to 45 cycles. The CDC admits that any tests over 28 cycles are not admissible for a positive reliable result. This alone invalidates over 90% of the alleged covid cases / "infections" tracked by the use of this faulty test.

In addition to the flawed tests and fraudulent death certificates, the "experimental" vaccine itself is in violation of Article 32 of the Geneva Convention. Under Article 32 of the 1949 Geneva Convention IV, "mutilation and medical or scientific experiments not necessitated by the medical treatment of a protected person" are prohibited. According to Article 147, conducting biological experiments on protected persons is a grave breach of the Convention.

The "experimental" vaccine is in violation of all 10 of the Nuremberg Codes which carry the death penalty for those who seek to violate these International Laws.

The "vaccine" fails to meet the following five requirements to be considered a vaccine and is by definition a medical "experiment" and trial:

Provides immunity to the virus

Biden relies on adherence to climate crisis creed and belief in MAGIC to transform USA, world

By Paul Driessen

Via executive orders, regulatory edicts and partisan Green New Deal legislation, President Biden intends to slash US carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gas emissions by 50% below their 2005 peak by 2030, and eliminate them (and fossil fuel use) by 2050. But as AOC's former chief of staff noted, the GND is not just about transforming America's energy system; it's about changing the entire economy.

Hillary Clinton Hanged at GITMO

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, April 26, 2021

Scrambled eggs with jalapeno peppers, and a strawberry milkshake. The last meal of the condemned.

Hillary Rodham Clinton was hanged at Guantanamo Bay Monday night, her death the culmination of an operation that began on March 2 when U.S. Navy SEALs on Donald J. Trump's authority arrested the disgraced politician at her Chappaqua, NY mansion. After a five-day tribunal at the world's most infamous detention center, a three-officer panel found

Joe Biden: Will he be the 21st c. James Buchanan?

By William L. Kovacs

For those unfamiliar with the name James Buchanan, he was the nation's 15th president. Most historians consider Buchanan the nation's most inept and worst president. His term of office was 1857 – 1861, the years before the Civil War when our nation was deeply divided over the issue of slavery. Instead of working to bridge the divide, Buchanan, not only allowed regional tensions to fester, he lobbied the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold slavery and advocated for Kansas to join the union as a slave state. Within months after the end of his presidency, the Civil War ignited.

Pentagon Coup! Joint Chiefs Overthrown

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, May 5, 2021

Last month Real Raw News reported on a shocking incident at the Pentagon, the seat of America's military might: The man who calls himself president, Joseph R. Biden, had visited the Pentagon under the pretense of conducting a surprise presidential inspection. His real impetus was to learn whether a rumor he had heard was true, that Donald J. Trump was in the building meeting secretly with Marine Corps General David H. Berger, which could explain why Pentagon police denied him access to the property. While Steve's Say . . .

Who to Believe? Trust your Intuition

By Steve Welcenbach

Unsurprisingly, last edition I got more phone calls about the content of the April issue than for any issue ever before. All callers articulated their incredulity about some of these articles I included, some subscribers using rather disparaging diction. Yet by the end of every conversation, all embraced my reasoning as reasonable and most asked me to send them some additional copies of the paper to share with others.

As I stated in my piece last month, the inclusion of the arrest story of Hillary and other Deep State criminals seemed too good to believe. And now the same source tells us Navy Seals arrested Comey, Hillary hung on the evening of Monday April 26th, and the Tribunal convicted Podesta on all counts and sentenced him to death. For the non-internet Reality News readers, after last edition it would have been cruel not to include these important follow-up reports.

I can't be certain any of these reports are 100% correct, or even substantially for that matter. Yet when placed in the context of our time and the condition of media today I feel more strongly than ever that they in fact are real. It certainly makes sense if you can embrace the seemingly sensible idea that enough of the military leadership upholds its constitutional mandate to We the People. Remember, they work for us, not "the government" nor any politician.

If one accepts that premise, that our military actually opposes the Deep State and intends to uphold its obligation to the ordinary American citizen, then all these things not only could happen but should happen. How they carry out these necessary operations and their timing cannot be understood by observers on the outside, nor should they. But the story about the Joint Chiefs ousting the two Generals supporting the fake presidency had to happen if the military will act as the People's firewall. Keep praying that it's happening.

One interesting data point involves the raid on Rudi Giuliani's apartment. The fact that the Hillary Clinton hanging piece specifically states Rudi personally attended the hanging and then the very next day gets raided by the Deep State goon squad I think says volumes. I believe it demonstrated the Deep State's awareness of her hanging and its colossal importance in all contexts. It also indicated how little means they have left to counter such a gigantic blow against their sick plans.

But we can't get complacent. Look how they're trying to start wars everywhere, from Ukraine to Taiwan to the Middle East. The cabal's favorite war playground, Israel, they're trying their best to start on fire. The "Biden" criminal enterprise, posing as the US government at the moment, everyone in America ought to see as our enemy, and no one else. Everyone else on the planet only responds to the mischief these devils promulgate. And at the very center lies the banking cabal and all of its New World Order (NWO) facets, the UN, CCP, WHO, CDC, FBI, CIA, Mossad, M13, Big Pharma, you name it. Drugs, human trafficking and slavery they offer to mankind. In other words, misery. Hell on Earth.

And what about our Churches? Painfully acknowledged, either out to lunch or fully on board with the NWO. For example, the "Pope's" conference May 6-8th. Nothing but Leftist, genocidal maniacs and Satanists attended. Other than that awesome pastor in Calgary Alberta the just got arrested and a few others, the Christian churches by and large are leading their flocks to slaughter.

Luckily God does not abandon His people nor does he allow those that mock Him to escape His vengeance. For all those involved, from the haughtiest politician, lying scientist, quack doctor, subversive IT professional, and all election fraudsters, your time's up. Be ready to squeal and sing and spend some time on "retreat." You may even get invited to the BIG PARTY at GITMO!

For the rest of you, here's a tip to assist your mind with a daily dose of real information you can use. Go to the X-22 report on rumble or Bitchute. Consume some real news, logic and hope all in one viewing.

Keep praying, and never forget God always wins.

Playing Fast and Loose with Numbers

By E. Calvin Beisner

How significant is it that Amazon rainforest equal to 3 soccer fields is destroyed each minute?

Guest article by Joakim Book

Journalism is hard. To portray the world accurately to a layman audience without delving into the complexities and nuances of the universe we inhabit, writers must always simplify, explain, and make difficult content relatable for their readers. You can do this well and comprehensively, and you can do it poorly.

Often, writers simplify and give concrete examples with the best of intentions, even though I don't put it past some of the activist writers out there to fudge what they portray and fidget with the details. But what really strikes a nerve with me is when writers end up misleading so grossly that their readers walk away with a completely twisted view of the world. The late Hans Rosling was a master at pricking the bubbles that these mistakes had created in our heads.

I have summarized his perhaps most valuable advice to Always Be Comparing Thy Number; never let numbers stand alone; always have readily available comparisons that let you answer the crucial questions: is that a lot? What was it last year? Ten years ago? Do informed researchers think it's a lot?

Most of us don't walk around with easily comparable frameworks for what's a large and small number in areas we know nothing about – how many people normally die in car accidents or from medical errors, how long the Amazon River is or how much ice there is in the world. Implicitly or explicitly, we rely on fact-checking journalists to tell us in the process of covering the crucial topic they're writing about.

Too often, they don't. And not only do they neglect their professional role, they tend to make our misunderstandings worse when they actually engage in contrived comparisons. In any story that includes climate change this tendency seems to have gone completely haywire (maybe the covidocracy can give it a run for its money).

Far from being settled, climate science is tricky: we don't know well what happens to global temperatures when atmospheric CO2 doubles ("climate sensitivity"); we can't properly model clouds and cloud formation, crucial for how much of the sun's incoming heat will be reflected away; the range for best-guesses as to what the global temperature rise over the coming century will be is vast (maybe 1° Celsius – maybe 5° Celsius) – so vast, in fact, that it hardly warrants a quantification.

Yet, the science is "settled," we hear, and we must "listen to the scientists."

The Sea Level Rise, the Olympic Swimming Pools, and the Football Fields

But the worst crime are the subtle throwaway lines that journalists tuck onto their coverage of impending doom that give a completely mistaken impression about the future of the world. Let's start with the Amazon.

The Amazon forest is huge. So huge, in fact, that few of us can even fathom how mind-bogglingly huge it is: numbers just won't do it justice – does anyone have a reference point for what 5.5 million square kilometers look like? The main Amazon River, not considering its countless tributaries, is some 6,400 km long: traveling at a comfortable 20 km/h (12.5 mph), it would take you a good two weeks of traveling day and night – probably more because of weather, currents, and debris. The area of the forest itself is the size of all U.S. states west of the Mississippi (minus Alaska): from the Gulf to the Canadian border, the Pacific to the Mississippi, all covered in forest.

In addition to that, we have the Cerrado, an area south and east of the Amazon the size of the U.S. east of the Mississippi, that's technically tropical savannah but few of us would hesitate calling it forested.

When the scientific journal Nature has a headline that reads "deforestation rate in 2020 is the greatest of the decade," they're not lying. The BBC even trumped them a little by slapping "deforestation 'surges to 12-year high'" on unsuspecting readers. So, we get the impression that Brazilian deforestation is really bad (see chart):

Here I overlaid a simple trendline and a ten-year moving average for illustration. The 11,000 km2 deforested last year was indeed the highest since 2008, but is dwarfed by what routinely came before it. More importantly, we must ask: is it a lot? If your target rate of deforestation – in the poorest areas of a relatively poor country, mind you – is zero (which it shouldn't be), it looks like things are not just terrible but going the wrong way. A longer, and wider, perspective tells you otherwise.

It didn't take long before BBC's science editor, David Shukman, brought up the familiar "football field-per minute" metric. The area deforested last year was around 1,552,320 standard British football fields, or over 4,000 of them each day, for just under 3 football fields a minute. While Shukman and countless others have tried to make the topic visually understandable for a layperson – we can imagine the size of three adjacent football fields – our imagination is quickly swamped by a "massively large area that I can't even grapple with." Quickly, when we scale those minutes to hours and days, we get the impression that huge areas of this important forest is melting away faster than ice cream on a hot summer's day.

But we already know that the Amazon forest alone is some 5,500,000 km2 large, the portion within Brazil's borders some 4,000,000 km2. What was deforested last year, then, was less than 0.003% of the Brazilian forest left standing. Now, does it still sound like an incredibly vast amount? If we estimate that farmers and loggers deforest a similar amount in the next few years, and we ignore potential runaway feedback processes for a

EPA's totalitarian assault on America

By Duggan Flanakin

Biden-Harris Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Michael Regan is clearly on a mission. He has "bold aspirations, and a long to-do list," says The Washington Post. But to succeed, the Post acknowledges, he must "help the EPA get its groove back." As Regan put it, "We've got a lot of work to do, starting with rebuilding staff morale and getting all our staff back to feeling as if they matter, their voices matter."

Regan says his job is "to restore the scientific integrity and the utilization of data, of facts, as we move forward, and make some very important decisions." His second goal is to increase "cooperation" between the EPA and its "subordinate" state environmental agencies. EPA will dictate; states will fall in line.

A big step toward that goal was extending a Memorandum of Agreement between the EPA, the Environmental Council of the States, and the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials. According to Regan, "EPA is committed to building on the values of transparency, respect, and an open dialogue that are the cornerstone of a successful partnership with the states." As EPA defines the terms.

An Obama-appointed federal judge just restored the EPA's use of "secret science" in formulating regulations that businesses and industries must follow just because the EPA says so – with "scientific evidence" that cannot be cross-examined. U.S. District Judge Brian Morris (in Great Falls, Montana) took just hours before vacating the Trump EPA rule that would have ended this Star Chamber style rule.

For decades, the EPA relied on unreviewable studies to impose draconian restrictions on businesses and industries, and thus on the U.S. economy. Trump wanted to bring true transparency to the process. Opponents claimed the Trump secret science" rule would block the use of critical public health studies kept secret supposedly to protect the identities of trial participants – which of course was not the case.

As Trump EPA Administrator Andrew Wheeler explained, the "secret science" rule in no way blocked previous "secret" studies; rather, it created tiers in which preference is given to studies with public data. Peer reviewers looking at a study's raw data did not need to know any of the subject's names, so no patient confidentiality was at risk. Moreover, in most cases, a review of basic methods, statistics and results is sufficient to determine if they actually support the study's conclusion. Wheeler also noted:

"Too often Congress shirks its responsibility and defers important decisions to regulatory agencies. These regulators then invoke science to justify their actions, often without letting the public study the underlying data. Part of transparency is making sure the public knows what the agency bases its decisions on."

Now the Biden-Harris EPA has revived its old policy based on a failed 2015 (Obama-Biden) rulemaking that twists the Clean Air Act language in an effort to destroy auto racing as a sport in the USA.

The EPA claims modifying a vehicle previously certified for street driving for use as a competition-only racecar is unlawful even for vehicles that are trailered and never driven on public roads again. This policy seeks to end a 50-year-old American tradition. It has no precedent; even California exempts racing vehicles from regulation.

When history disproves climate doom

By Craig Rucker

One of the toughest challenges for the global warming crowd occurs when, after the passage of time, the doom they predicted is nowhere to be seen.

Dr. Jay Lehr rounded up ten prominent examples where alarming predictions by warming campaigners failed to come to pass:

1. In 1987, a former NASA scientist was quoted in nearly all U.S. newspapers that by 2020 the world's temperature would increase by 5.4 degrees Fahrenheit. The actual increase was less than a single degree Fahrenheit.
2. In 1978, The Vermont Sun quoted multiple scientists predicting that by 2020 the Earth's CO2 concentration would double from its then current level of 330 parts per million. It actually increased by only about 27% to 420.
3. In 2009, it was predicted that China would decrease their CO2 emissions by 40 to 45% and India by 20 to 25%. Instead their emissions have increased in the past 11 years.
4. In 2008, Al Gore and most of his friends predicted the snow on Mount Kilimanjaro would have disappeared. There has been little change at all in its snow cap.
5. In 1986, U.S. EPA predicted a two foot sea level rise for Florida in 2020. It has risen about one inch, a rate which has been experienced for 800 years. An additional apparent rise of 3 inches has been the result of land subsidence.
6. In March of 2000 at Britain"s Hadley Centre for Climate Prediction and Research, scientist David Parker told the English newspaper The Independent that British children will soon experience snow only virtually on the internet. When it does snow 20 years hence (2020) it will cause chaos due to its rarity. England has not been short of normal snow.
7. In 2000 it was reported by the Tarawa, Kiribati newspaper that a study by Greenpeace indicated that Global Warming will ruin Pacific Island Nations economies by 2020 with Tuvalu considered most critical. Tuvalu's 2019 budget report stated that Tuvalu had enjoyed an unprecedented six consecutive years of economic growth.
8. A secret Pentagon study in 2004 reported to President Bush that climate change-caused resource shortages may cause a global war by 2020. It said that shortages of water and energy will become increasingly harder to overcome plunging the planet into war as it is carrying a higher population than it can sustain. Enough said.
9. USA Today reported in 2013 that the Arctic should be free of ice in the summer by 2020. The prediction was off by 3.9 million square kilometers, which was the amount of remaining ice in September of 2020.
10. In 2009, The Los Angeles Times reported from a number of government reports that it was expected that all glaciers in Glacier National Park would be gone by 2020. The Park officials posted signs warning visitors that the end of glaciers in the Park was near. In 2020 no glaciers were gone but the signs were removed.

Dr. Lehr posted more details to CFACT.org.

We were just talking about the immensity of the task taken on by those of us who correct the record on climate.

Last year they told us that Australians were doomed to a future of drought and fiery punishment. Now they're inundated with massive rainfall and floods Down Under. Oliver Sawaya fled his home near Sydney with his elderly father in a dinghy. He said his property "looked as if you were in Sydney Harbor and you were on a boat."

If Australia's drought was your fault, whose fault is the flood?

You'd think the warming narrative constantly proving itself ridiculous would make our task easy.

Alas, no. As a society we are afflicted with a horrendous case of ADD.

The warming people and their compliant media count on us to have memories and attention spans that are about ten minutes long.

Watch for them to shamelessly do an about turn, and attribute Australia's heavy rain to climate. They'll double down on their demands to control what they believe is your over-the-top lifestyle, and the need to redistribute your nest egg as well. That an El Niño caused the drought and the subsequent La Niña the flood... well who's going to remind you about that?

CFACT will.

Why Wind and Solar Energy are Doomed to Failure

By Craig Rucker

Wind and solar energy are both essentially obsolete technologies. There is a reason why only the very rich or the very adventurous sail across oceans: the wind is unreliable, and at best produces relatively little energy. Nevertheless, liberals have concocted fantasies whereby all of our electricity, or perhaps our entire economy, will be powered by those fickle sources.

There are a number of reasons why this will never happen, but a paper published last week by Center of the American Experiment argues that land use constraints are the most basic reason why wind and solar are inexorably destined to fail. The paper, titled Not In Our Backyard, is authored by internationally recognized energy expert Robert Bryce, producer of the terrific documentary Juice: How Electricity Explains The World and the book A Question of Power: Electricity and the Wealth of Nations

Robert's paper acknowledges that there are multiple reasons why wind and solar energy will never meet America's energy needs, but focuses on the particular problem of land use:

Of course, other factors, including the incurable intermittency of renewables as well as the massive amounts of materials, including steel, concrete, copper, and rare earth elements, will limit the deployment of wind and solar. But the biggest barrier is the land-use problem. The ferocity and extent of rural land-use conflicts are showing that any attempt to convert the domestic economy to run solely on renewables is destined to fail.

Why is land use such a problem for wind and solar, but not for coal, nuclear or natural gas? Because wind and solar are pathetically low-intensity energy sources, as reflected in this chart from Bryce's paper (see figure 2):

Because wind and solar produce so little energy per square mile, an enormous amount of land would have to be devoted to panels and turbines if we seriously tried to get all of our present electricity needs from those weak sources:

Miller and Keith determined that "meeting present-day U.S. electricity consumption, for example, would require 12 percent of the continental U.S. land area for wind." A bit of math reveals what that 12 percent figure means. The land area of the continental U.S. is about 2.9 million square miles, or 7.6 million square kilometers. Twelve percent of that area would be about 350,000 square miles or 912,000 square kilometers. Therefore, merely meeting America's current electricity needs with wind energy would require a territory more than two times the size of California.

Suffice to say that this just isn't going to happen.

For one thing, no one places wind farms in Washington, D.C. or midtown Manhattan. Nor are wind projects slated for Long Island, Marin County, or near any valuable suburban developments. It is rural America that bears the burden of many square miles of wind and solar installations.

And it is a burden: apart from the obvious aesthetic issues, Bryce's paper reviews substantial medical evidence that the noise produced by wind turbines adversely affects human health. And, of course, wind turbines are fatal to wildlife. As a result of such concerns, rural communities across America–hundreds of them–have risen up to oppose wind turbine developments. These efforts have largely been successful.

Germany undertook to mandate wind energy, but its mandates have fallen flat because of public opposition to specific wind projects. The same thing is happening in the U.S. Robert's paper includes a database of communities that have moved to reject or restrict wind projects. American Experiment will continue to maintain this database, and make it available to towns, townships and counties that are threatened by wind developments. Public opposition promises to bring the Green New Deal to a screeching halt.

When "green" advocates tabulate the costs of wind and solar energy, they generally don't include the thousands of miles of transmission lines that are required to bring electricity from the rural areas that are stuck with "green" development to the urban areas where the electricity is used. But such transmission lines represent a huge economic and environmental issue:

Connecting lots of wind and solar to the grid also requires appropriating land for transmission projects. According to the National Renewable Energy Laboratory, converting the domestic electric grid to run on renewables will require roughly doubling the amount of high-voltage transmission capacity in the U.S. At present, the U.S. has about 240,000 miles of high-voltage transmission. Therefore,

Africans reject demands to end fossil fuel use

Africans need strategies that support economic development, jobs, access to energy

By Duggan Flanakin

As the merger of climate change and COVID panic materializes before us, "global leaders" have found developing world voices to join the crusade to "save the planet" from carbon (dioxide) "pollution." But like their Chinese and Indian counterparts, many Africans, from heads of state to captains of industry and beyond, intend to expand reliance on fossil fuels to build their economies, not shrink it.

"Africa's electricity demand is set to increase significantly, as the continent strives to industrialize and improve the well-being of its people," says Oxford University researcher Galina Alova. Those who hope for rapid energy "decarbonization" in Africa will likely be disappointed. Alova's research found that Africa is likely to double its electricity generation by 2030, with fossil fuels providingtwo-thirds of the total, hydroelectric another 18% and non-hydro renewables less than a tenth.

Such an energy mix flies in the face of the firm commitment from the Biden Administration to demand an end to all international financing of fossil-fuel-based energy projects. Biden climate envoy John Kerry won a strong endorsement of this from 450 organizations worldwide, after telling World Economic Forum members of the "plan for ending international finance of fossil fuel projects with public money."

The Biden plan certainly comports with the Paris climate agreement and echoes the call by European Union foreign ministers to end financing of fossil fuel projects abroad, meaning primarily in Africa. Secretary of State Antony Blinken certainly believes "development finance is a powerful tool" for addressing the "climate crisis" that the U.S. intends to use to "help drive investment toward climate solutions." (Translation: "We intend to ram decarbonization down their throats!") And many Africans feel they must placate their self-appointed betters and accept climate change tenets.

World Bank veteran Ede Ijjasz Vasquez and Africa Growth Initiative Director Aloysius Ordu certainly think Africans must take advantage of the COVID pandemic to initiate "a great reset" of African economies according to UN Sustainable Development Goals and Paris agreement principles.

The world, they insist, cannot afford to give Africa a pass on decarbonization – even though China and India are clearly getting a pass, largely because they are mostly financing their own projects. The US Agency for International Development (USAID) has similar anti-fossil-fuel policies. All these attitudes smell of carbon colonialism and eco-imperialism.

Those who care about people, and eliminating poverty and disease, prefer a more temperate approach.

In late March, investment professional Tariye Gbadegesin challenged President Biden to prioritize African nations as part of his global climate initiative. While admitting that Africa's urban centers are swelling, "threatening more emissions," she asserted that striking a balance between this ongoing development and its climate impact must be a global priority. For example, Nigeria could build a hybrid grid using plentiful natural gas and solar energy. Such a hybrid grid might not meet Biden-EU financing guidelines, Gbadegesin recognized, but a lot of gas is now being burned off and wasted.

In early April, the Africa Development Bank (AfDB), Global Center for Adaptation, and Africa Adaptation Initiative held a virtual Leaders Dialogue in response to the State of the Climate in Africa 2019 report. Over 30 heads of state and other global leaders committed to prioritize actionsthat will help African countries both adapt to the alleged impacts of "climate change" and overcome widespread energy poverty. African Union chair Felix Tshisekedi listed "nature-based solutions, energy transition, an enhanced transparency framework, technology transfer, and climate finance" as critical adaptation areas.

During the meeting, AfDB president Dr. Akinwumi Adesina noted the group intends to mobilize $25 billion in financing for the success of the Africa Adaptation Acceleration Program. "It is time," he said, "for developed countries to meet their promise of providing $100 billion annually for climate finance. And a greater share of this should go to climate adaptation."

With developed countries struggling to recover and create jobs in the wake of COVID, and amid efforts to decarbonize their own economies, the likelihood of even $10 billion annually is slim to none.

Moreover, this African response to the Biden-EU decarbonization initiative – relying on adaptation and balance, not carbon prohibition and eternal poverty, to achieve sustainability – reflects the 1987 Brundtland Commission report, "Our Common Future." In it, the World Commission on Environment and Development defined "sustainable development" as development that "meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs." [emphasis added]

Back then, Commission Chair Gro Harlem Brundtland acknowledged that, "A world in which poverty is endemic will always be prone to ecological and other catastrophes." In her view, "Meeting essential needs requires not only a new era of economic growth for nations in which the majority are poor, but an assurance that those poor get their fair share of the resources required to sustain that growth."

US, EU and UN climate "monarchs" have long ignored Brundtland's promises. The UN's 20-year assessment of the document did not even mention "poverty" or "Africa." CFACT reported that yearthat sub-Saharan Africa was "in very short supply of energy and power, especially electricity, and overland trade [was] greatly hindered by an almost total lack of infrastructure." Worse, preventable lung diseases were (and still are) rampant, because people must rely on dung and wood fires for heating and cooking.

At the 2011 UN climate conference in Durban, South Africa, nuclear physicist (and CFACT advisor) Kelvin Kemm reported that African representatives were not happy. "Their general feeling," he noted, "was that the First World is trying to push Africa around, bully African countries into accepting its opinions, and even worse [forcing Africa to adopt] its supposed 'solutions.'"

That feeling remains. Responding to the Biden-EU renewables-only energy financing plan, W. Gyude Moore, a senior fellow at the Center for Global Development and former Liberian Minister of Public Works, suggested that "There's this idea that, because Africa is lacking in legacy infrastructure, it's a good canvas to paint the energy future. But no African country has volunteered itself for that."

With nearly 600 million Africans still lacking access to electricity, "it seems immoral to restrict options for energy sources" for the world's poorest continent, Moore stated. He and Breakthrough Institute scholar Vijaya Ramachandran later renewables conversion means adding enough high-voltage transmission lines to circle the Earth about 10 times.

No problem! says Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez. But any attempt to construct 240,000 more miles of high-voltage wires will, like the wind turbines themselves, encounter local opposition that likely will make such an effort impossible.

Please do read Robert's report in its entirety. Together with research being done by experts like Isaac Orr, it sounds a death knell for "green" energy, which is intermittent, unreliable, low-intensity at best, outrageously expensive, and dependent on vast natural resources that may not exist, or at a minimum would require the greatest explosion of mining, manufacturing and transportation in world history.

So why does the "green dream" persist? In part, because it is inflicted on children from elementary school on. But mostly because there is a great deal of money in it. This chart shows the volume of U.S. tax incentives per unit of energy produced for various energy sources (see Figure 5):

"Green" energy holds political sway, which has made a relative handful of people (largely non-Americans and lobbyists) immensely wealthy, while impoverishing utility rate payers and taxpayers–that is to say, the rest of us. This insanity will continue until voters wise up, or–more likely, I am afraid–until the laws of physics, along with land use and raw materials constraints, make it blindingly obvious that the "green dream" is just that. A nightmare.

By that time, an astonishing amount of wealth will have been destroyed.

driven by three fundamental Articles of Faith, none of them based on reality.

1) The crisis of manmade climate cataclysms necessitates this GND. Team Biden believes natural forces no longer play a role; rising temperatures since the Little Ice Age ended two centuries ago are due solely to fossil fuel use and CO2 emissions, as are all extreme weather events over recent decades; and the 12-year absence of Category 3-5 hurricanes making US landfall (from Wilma in 2005 to Harvey in 2017) is irrelevant – as is the significant decline in violent (F3-F5) US tornadoes 1986-2020 compared to 1950-1985, and that for the first time in history not one violent twister hit the United States in 2018.

(For a full reality check, read books by Gregory Wrightstone, Marc Morano, Indur Goklany, Patrick Moore, Roy Spencer, Jennifer Marohasy and Obama Energy Undersecretary of Science Steven Koonin.)

1) American foreign policy must construct a values-based world order that can tackle humanity's common problems in an organized, collegial manner. Team Biden believes such problems cannot be solved by national governments acting alone, so world leaders have no choice but to work together. Wall Street Journal global view columnist Walter Russell Means calls this the Biden Doctrine.

However, China, India and many other countries don't view climate change as an existential threat – much less a problem that justifies sacrificing their energy needs, economic growth, national security and geopolitical aspirations. They may give lip service to the alleged "climate crisis," "decarbonization" and "green energy." But they know their futures are inextricably tied to the abundant, reliable, affordable energy that only oil, natural gas and coal (plus hydroelectric and nuclear) can provide. They are not going to "work together" with leaders who expect them to undermine their most vital goals.

The Biden Doctrine's second inherent failing is that GND policies will inevitably hollow out America's industrial and military might, destroy jobs, and reduce US leverage in future negotiations. China already controls the raw material supply chains for wind turbines, solar panels, battery modules for electric vehicles and backup power systems, and countless other technologies. Even our advanced military equipment relies on metals and minerals that are mined and/or processed by Chinese companies. GND policies would only worsen the situation.

3) Replacing the 80% of US energy that now comes from fossil fuels can be accomplished quickly, easily, affordably and ecologically – with clean, green, renewable, sustainable, carbon-free wind and solar technologies that will create millions of good jobs, and save our planet from climate devastation.

The foundation for this presumed global transformation is the Biden Administration's Materials Acquisition for Global Industrial Change program – better known by its acronym: MAGIC.

(This is not an official name. In fact, there is no such program, and no evidence that Team Biden has a clue about what would be required to transform America from fossil to green energy. MAGIC simply provides the most accurate description of how they expect to achieve this transformation.)

The raw material requirements for a GND economy are astronomical, mind-numbing. To cite just one example of hundreds, Team Biden wants to install 30,000 megawatts of wind turbines off America's Atlantic, Gulf of Mexico and Pacific coasts. Assuming 10,000 MW per coastline, total Atlantic coast wind capacity would barely meet three-fourths of peak summertime electricity demand for New York City – assuming full output 24/7/365. The entire 30,000 MW wouldn't meet New York State's current peak electricity needs.

However, at 3.6 tons per megawatt, just this Phase 1 offshore wind scheme would require 108,000 tons of copper. At 0.8% metal in an average ore globally, that would involve mining, crushing and processing some 13,000,000 tons of ore, after removing millions of tons of rock to get to the ore bodies!

14-MW Vesta, GE or Siemens-Gamesa turbines stand 815-850 feet above 30-100 foot deep ocean waters (160 feet higher than the Washington Monument). Each blade is 350 feet long. Every turbine weighs in at 2,000-3,000 tons of metals, plastics and composites, plus massive concrete-and-rebar bases. Phase 1 alone will involve tens of millions of tons of materials, billions of tons of ores and overburden.

Add in materials for subsea electrical cables, onshore transmission lines, onshore wind turbines and solar panels, backup battery systems, electric vehicles, electric heating systems and other GND

THIS WEEK:
By Ken Haapala, President Science & Environmental Policy Project (SEPP)

What Does This Administration Demand? Starting April 23, the Biden administration held a climate (CO_2 restriction) summit during which the political leaders of various countries tried to outbid each other on the extent their country would sacrifice economic wellbeing to reduce carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions. According to the White House "Fact Sheet":

"On Day One, President Biden fulfilled his commitment to rejoin the Paris Agreement. Days later, he took executive actions to ensure we tackle the climate crisis at home and abroad – all while creating jobs and strengthening our economy. This week, he held a historic summit with 40 world leaders to show that America is back.

"Over the course of two days and eight sessions, President Biden convened heads of state and government, as well as leaders and representatives from international organizations, businesses, subnational governments, and indigenous communities to rally the world in tackling the climate crisis, demonstrate the economic opportunities of the future, and affirm the need for unprecedented global cooperation and ambition to meet the moment.

"On the first day of the summit, President Biden upped the ante. He announced the United States will target reducing emissions by 50-52 percent by 2030 compared to 2005 levels. He underscored America's commitment to leading a clean energy revolution and creating good-paying, union jobs – noting that the countries that take decisive action now will reap the economic benefits of the future.

"In the United States, the Biden-Harris Administration has mobilized a whole-of-government approach to unleash economic opportunities, create good jobs, and advance environmental justice. From the national to the local level and across all agencies, the federal government is not only working to help those hit hardest by climate impacts, but also creating a more resilient, equitable, and prosperous future.

"While the Biden-Harris Administration has committed itself to addressing the climate crisis, countries across the globe must also step up. Given that more than 85 percent of emissions come from beyond U.S. borders, domestic action must go hand in hand with international leadership. All countries – and particularly the major economies – must do more to bend the curve on global emissions so as to keep a 1.5 degree C limit on global average temperature rise within reach. President Biden's Leaders' Summit helped ensure the international community is working together to tackle the climate crisis and support the most vulnerable. Together with the new United States 2030 target along with those announced in the run-up to and at the summit, more than half of the world's economy is now committed to the pace of action we need to limit warming to 1.5-degree C. And this coalition is growing."

The leadership of China was not impressed. Perhaps the leadership of China realizes that the claimed climate crisis and all these grand pronouncements rely on faulty climate modeling, based on the wrong field of physics needed to understand the greenhouse effect and use the wrong evidence (databases) for estimating the greenhouse effect. If the White House cannot get the science, the evidence, and the models right, there is no reason to assume it can get its promises of green jobs and prosperity right.

Or perhaps the leadership of China understands far better than anyone in the White House what extreme poverty is and the importance of fossil fuels in eliminating it.

According to the 2015 Special Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC)

Summary: Human-induced warming has already reached about 1°C above pre-industrial levels at the time of writing of this Special Report. By the decade 2006–2015, human activity had warmed the world by 0.87°C (±0.12°C) compared to pre-industrial times (1850–1900). If the current warming rate continues, the world would reach human-induced global warming of 1.5°C around 2040.

Since NOAA and NASA-GISS frequently cite data beginning in 1880 in their claims of global warming, it is useful looking at the living conditions in 1880, which Our World in Data provides. The graph "Share of the World Population living in Absolute Poverty, 1820-2015" is useful, and follows standards set by the World Bank.

"The World Bank only publishes data on extreme poverty from 1981 onwards, but researchers have reconstructed information about the living standards of the more distant past. The seminal paper on this was written by Bourguignon and Morrison in 2002."

"In this paper, the two authors reconstruct measures of poverty as far back as 1820. The poverty line of 1.90 int.-$ per day was just introduced in 2015, so the 2002 paper uses the measure of 'one dollar per day'. This difference in the definition of poverty should be kept in mind when comparing the following graph to those discussed in other sections of this entry.

"In 1820, the vast majority of people lived in extreme poverty and only a tiny elite enjoyed higher standards of living. Economic growth over the last 200 years completely transformed our world, with the share of the world population living in extreme poverty falling continuously over the last two centuries. This is even more remarkable when we consider that the population increased 7-fold over the same time. In a world without economic growth, an increase in the population would result in less and less income for everyone. A 7-fold increase in the world population would be potentially enough to drive everyone into extreme poverty. Yet, the exact opposite happened. In a time of unprecedented population growth, we managed to lift more and more people out of the extreme poverty of the past.

"It is very difficult to compare income or consumption levels over long periods of time because the available goods and services tend to change significantly, to the extent where even completely new goods and services emerge. This point is so significant that it would not be incorrect to claim that every person in the world was extremely poor in the 19th century. Nathan Rothschild was surely the richest man in the world when he died in 1836. But the cause of his death was an infection—a condition that can now be treated with antibiotics sold for less than a couple of cents. Today, only the very poorest people in the world would die in the way that the richest man of the 19th century died. This example is a good indicator of how difficult it is to judge and compare levels of prosperity and poverty, especially for the distant past.

"The trend over time becomes more clear if one compares the availability of necessities like food, housing, clothing, and energy. As more and more countries industrialized and increased the productivity of work, their economies started to grow, and poverty began to decline. According to the estimates by Bourguignon and Morrison—shown in the visualization—only a little more than a quarter of the world population was not living in poverty by 1950."

Using the Bourguignon and Morrison data, in 1880 about 88% of the world's population lived on less than 2 dollars per day. About 74% lived on less than $1 per day. Death by starvation was not unusual.

Using the World Bank data for extreme poverty of less than $1.90 per day, in 1980 44% of the world's population lived in extreme poverty, in 1990 37%. The economic policy of the government of China changed significantly in 1990. It dramatically reduced regulation of the economy, effecting policies throughout much of Southeast Asia. In 1990, 37% of the world's population lived in extreme poverty, in 2015 less than 10% (projection).

The maps and tables for "The evolution of extreme poverty, country by country" show that for China, in 1990 two thirds of the population lived in extreme poverty, in 2015 less than 1% (0.7%). This is a reduction of 99% in those living in extreme poverty in China. Much of this staggering increase in prosperity is due to the use of fossil fuels.

When he was Secretary of State, John Kerry, Biden's Climate Envoy, lectured students and businessmen in Indonesia that they should leave their vast coal resources in the ground. In 1984, 71.4% of Indonesia's population lived in extreme poverty. In 2017, 5.7%, a reduction of 92%. The audience may have been polite and listened, but it is doubtful they are fools.

Pump-Up Those Normals: NOAA has increased temperature trends by lowering past temperatures. Now it is increasing what it calls normal temperatures, which are warmer than ever. Tony Heller and Paul Homewood expose NOAAs attack on its own credibility.

A Glimmer of Hope: David Whitehouse of GWPF discusses an essay in AAAS Science which is a good example of what TWTW terms Bandwagon Science – if a paper is published, don't question it; expand on it no matter how poor the evidence is. As Whitehouse reports:

"The emerging doubts, reported in the journal Science, surrounding the quality of research into the effects of ocean acidification on fish behaviour reveal fault lines not only in the culture of science but also in the practice of science journalism."

Number of the Week: 92,000 years ago. According to a new paper, in southern-central Africa, humans were using fire to alter their environment 92,000 years ago.

"Fossil and genetic data indicate that Homo sapiens were present in Africa by ~315 thousand years (ka) ago, and archaeological data show notable increases in the complexity of behavior that took place across the continent within the past ~300- to 200-ka span at the end of the Middle Pleistocene (Chibanian). Since our emergence as a species, humans have come to rely on technological innovation, seasonal scheduling, and complex social cooperation to thrive. These attributes have enabled us to exploit previously uninhabited or extreme environments and resources, so that today humans are the only pan-global animal species. Fire has played a key role in this transformation."

The Science & Environmental Policy Project began in late 1990 as a research effort by atmospheric physicist S. Fred Singer and a handful of graduate students working out of a small office in downtownWashington, D.C.The Project had two goals: (1) to gather material for a book on global environmental issues,and (2) to conduct a survey of scientists affiliated with the UN Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change to determine the extent of what was, even then, being touted as scientific "consensus" on global warming.

What the graduate students discovered with their survey convinced Dr. Singer to set his book aside and instead to circulate among senior members of the American Meteorological Society a "Statement by Atmospheric Scientists" on greenhouse warming, which was quickly endorsed by 46 leading climatologists and atmospheric physicists (and eventually by nearly 100). That statement, issued on February 27, 1992, drew widespread media attention and was cited more than 150 times in the press. It was the first inkling journalists had that there was no scientific consensus on the reality of a global warming. Indeed, there was raging debate.

The Science & Environmental Policy Project was incorporated in the state of Virginia in 1992, and established as a nonprofit, 501(c)3 educational organization in late 1993.Today, having expanded from that core of 46 scientists, it draws on an international network of some of the finest minds in science who donate their time to promoting sound, credible, peer-reviewed research as the only basis for the health and environmental policies that affect us all.

You can help in two ways:

1. Download SEPP reports, press releases, and articles and pass them on – to newspaper editors, journalists, educators, civic leaders, and others. Help stop the fearmongering and the distortion of science.This is the most important thing you can do.

2. Support SEPP with your tax-deductible contributions. The environmental pressure groups, which present so much wrong information, have a combined clout of more than $1 billion a year.The Science & Environmental Policy Project has had far-reaching impact on less than one-hundredth of one percent of that figure. It's money well and effectively spent.

A Green Virus is being spread by the World Climate Conference – they must be gagged for our safety

By Viv Forbes

The Biden-Boris green virus which infects most of the west has become a danger to Australia. PM Morrison has promised one billion dollars for "hydrogen, CCUS (carbon capture usage or storage), batteries and critical minerals - all to achieve "net zero".

NOT ONE of these green dreams will produce one light-bulb of new energy – all will consume massive amounts of energy and money.

Innovation is going backwards in this green era. Just as the sun enters a cooling phase, we are heading for an energy dark age. Green zealots have re-discovered windmills from the Middle Ages and the solar energy they worship has powered plant and animal life since the sun started shining. The first electric car appeared about 1890 but was rendered obsolete by Henry Ford's petrol-powered Model T. Soon the maritime de-carbonisers will re-discover sails and our woke army will propose horse power to move soldiers and artillery. Will Australia run our diesel submarines on re-cycled cooking fat? Maybe Clydesdales will return to the farms?

Hydrogen usage is not new - hydrogen in coal gas was used in cities like London for a century from 1870. Maybe hydrogen-powered airships will again grace our skies?

CCUS (carbon capture use and storage) is just an old failed idea (CCS) jazzed up with the word "use". The best use of carbon dioxide is to feed all plant life on earth, thus feeding all animal life. Burning coal provides massive environmental benefits in replacing the carbon dioxide plant food that was removed from the atmosphere by the great Carboniferous forests and laid down in coal seams. Earth's huge oceans contain immense amounts of carbon dioxide and, according to Henry's Law, will offset all attempts by puny man to manipulate the atmosphere. If we add CO2 to the atmosphere, oceans will dissolve much of it. If John Kerry manages to remove some atmospheric CO2 (at great cost), the oceans will quickly replace much of it.

We now consume energy to dig up and process copper, nickel, lithium, cobalt, lead and rare earth minerals for batteries while denigrating the biggest natural batteries on Earth – our massive coal deposits that store millions of years' worth of solar energy. Disposing of millions of used metallic batteries is a looming environmental disaster that Greens ignore.

Nuclear power provides reliable zero-emissions energy and needs no battery backup. Australia is a world leader in the production of uranium but produces no energy from it. It rated zero mention in our PM's Net-Zero Dreams.

Biden-Boris-Kerry will applaud Australia's Green Dreams but the realists from the BRICS nations will laugh and continue to build coal, oil, and nuclear power to combat the approaching cold era. China and India alone have over 1,000 GW of new coal-fired power planned.

Crazy schemes to cool the Earth's climate or extract CO2 from the atmosphere are green dreams and realist nightmares. We have managed to control both heat and cold in enclosed places like cars, houses and department stores (if the power is on). But the climate control lever of Planet Earth is outside the reach of mere mortals.

We cannot cool the climate, but history shows that nature may suddenly force cooling on us. We need affordable and reliable energy to help us live through whatever weather we face.

minute, Brazilians have enough forest for 360 years. We know enough about economic development and Kuznets curves to know that Brazilians won't mindlessly deforest the Amazon for that long.

Yet, the picture the reader carries with them is one of runaway deforestation rather than a mild return to longer-term trend.

The world of ice isn't much better. Here we don't employ the unhelpful and unscientific metric of football fields per minute, but Olympic swimming pools to gauge the amount of meltwater – or sea meter equivalents to compare amounts of ice (mostly in Antarctica and the Greenland Ice Sheet, or 'GIS').

The Guardian, always ready to deliver alarmism, reported that the GIS lost a record 530 billion metric tons of ice in 2019. Again, we're faced with a number we can't relate to. Is that a lot? The journalist kindly calculated that it's about 1 million tons of ice per minute, but that still doesn't quite cut it – where can I store a million tons of ice? Enter the swimming pools. Think seven of them, in some gigantic swimming facility, filled to the brim with Greenland ice. OK, I can somewhat picture that amount of ice. But then we add seven more pools the next second; and seven more, the next. Quickly we run into the same problem we did with the football fields: this is just a massive amount of ice that's melting. The images flash before our eyes: an ice-free world, the extra water in the oceans sweeping over our cities and drowning us all, Day After Tomorrow-style.

For some unfathomable reason, the journalists forgot to report how incredibly large the GIS is – not to mention Antarctica at something like 10x its volume. The ice sheet that covers 80% of Greenland is a dome of permanent ice, 1.7 million km2 and some 2-3 km thick at its peak. Comparing it in size to U.S. states, it's something like the area of Texas, California, New Mexico, Arizona, and Montana combined, covered in kilometers of ice. Estimates put it at 2.85 million cubic kilometers of ice, from which we last year lost about 530 km3. That's 0.02% of the ice sheet. Unless I displaced a few zeros somewhere – which wouldn't even change my argument – the GIS has enough ice left to fill more Olympic swimming pools than the dollar values of all the assets in the world (where each dollar's value represents one Olympic swimming pool of ice). It's, um, a lot.

A listener to British statistician and economist Tim Harford's show More or Less wondered about a figure he had heard in the media of 70 meters of sea level rise if all of Antarctica melted. Bethan Davies at University of London helps explain that if all the ice in the West Antarctica, East Antarctica, and Antarctic Peninsula ice sheets were to melt, we'd be looking at something like 58 meters rise in global sea levels. In her defense, Davies quickly dispelled any notions of that happening: zero, nada, zilch. Antarctica's vast ice sheets probably will contribute to sea level rises over the next century, but nothing like the 50+ meters that scary hypothetical calculations like those conjure up – with walls of ocean water suddenly battering down our coastal lands.

Still, journalists keep talking about a future without ice, about ice-free summers in the Arctic, and casually throwing in "sea level rise if x were to melt completely" as if x was in any danger of melting away entirely over anything but geological time frames. This places the completely wrong ideas in their readers' heads and gravely misinforms the public about the world.

Doctors abide by the "First, do no harm" promise. Maybe journalists should too.

Not only does the EPA claim it is illegal to convert a vehicle for racing by modifying its emission system; it claims manufacturing, selling or installing race parts for such vehicles is likewise unlawful. It's even said enforcement actions against high performance parts – including superchargers, tuners and exhaust systems – will now be a top priority.

This policy constitutes a direct assault on the nation's 1,300 racetracks, tens of thousands of participants and vehicle owners, and millions of racing fans nationwide. It is also a death blow to retail sales of racing products, a $2 billion a year industry. The move appears to be part of the Obama-Biden-Harris EPA strategy to rid the planet (or at least the USA) of internal combustion engines by taking away the romance of the racecar.

To thwart this likely unconstitutional EPA power grab, the Specialty Equipment Market Association has filed an amicus curiae (friend of the court) brief in a lawsuit by Gear Box Z, Inc. challenging the racecar conversion ban. The industry group also supports the Recognizing the Protection of Motorsports Act (RPM Act), which reaffirms the legality of converting street vehicles into race-only vehicles and confirms the legitimacy of producing, marketing and installing racing equipment.

They should prevail. But with today's courts, do even the most specific, commonsense laws still matter?

A recent Wall Street Journal editorial says the Biden-Harris EPA has a secret plan to force massive CO2 emissions reductions under the Clean Air Act, using ozone as its vehicle of choice. "Plan B" is the fallback strategy to be implemented once it is clear that even the Democrat-controlled Congress will not enact economy-killing anti-fossil fuel legislation. The ultimate goal is total fossil fuel eradication.

Under Plan B, EPA will reset the National Ambient Air Quality Standard (NAAQS) for ground-level ozone to zero – way below natural levels that Mother Nature herself emits! The "science" is based on a questionable 2017 study from Harvard's T. C. Chan School of Public Health, which claims there is no safe level of ozone in the atmosphere. How do you prosecute Mother Nature?

Plan B responds to the failure of the Obama-Biden Clean Power Plan, which was blocked by the U.S. Supreme Court. It reflects former EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson's blunt admission that it is technically infeasible and even legally questionable to regulate CO2 as a "criteria pollutant" under the Clean Air Act.

The simple reasons are fundamental. CO2 is what humans and animals exhale. It is what plants inhale to support photosynthesis and produce the oxygen that most life on Planet Earth requires to exist. It does not cause asthma or other diseases. CO2 emissions generated in a locality cannot be measured reliably and certainly cannot be reduced within the 10-year timetable for criteria pollutants. CO2 is not a pollutant.

Using ozone and the NAAQS to regulate CO2 is reportedly the brainchild of Joe Goffman, whom the Biden-Harris Administration has installed as principal deputy assistant administrator for the EPA's Office of Air and Radiation. Goffman, a chief architect of the Obama era Clean Power Plan, is known as EPA's "law whisperer." His specialty is "teaching old laws to do new tricks."

Goffman's plan was jump-started on January 19, 2021, when 16 Democratic state attorneys-general filed a legal challenge to the EPA's recently reauthorized ozone NAAQS. Their one-paragraph sue-and-settle lawsuit claims the standards are "unlawful, arbitrary and capricious and therefore must be vacated."

The Trump EPA in December 2020 had retained the ozone NAAQS at levels set in 2015 by the Obama-Biden Administration. That action marked only the second time since the 1970 Clean Air Act was enacted that EPA completed its ozone NAAQS review within the mandatory 5-year timeframe.

As the Wall Street Journal explains, Democratic AGs, green groups and top Biden environmental regulators intend to impose the Green New Deal on states through backdoor regulations, because they know they can't get it through the front door of Congress, even this sycophantic Congress.

Under this nefarious scheme – which could be imposed this year without any "open dialogue" in Congress – every state would be forever out of compliance, JunkScience.com director Steve Milloy emphasizes. It is simply impossible to eliminate natural background levels of ozone. But this action would give EPA effective and arbitrary control over the entire economy, especially fossil fuel use.

Giving unelected bureaucrats and a like-minded political cabal "effective and arbitrary control" over the entire U.S. economy creates a dictatorship of faceless and nameless totalitarians whose diktats the political class can claim they are powerless to upend. This is where America is headed, unless we stop these power-crazed autocrats.

wrote that a ban on oil and gas projects in Africa would stifle economic growth and make poor populations even more vulnerable to climate change impacts.

The top priority for most African countries is economic growth, first in agriculture, then in industry and services, Moore and Ramachandran explained. For most Africans, worries of an increased carbon footprint generated from economic growth are a distant second to worries that growth may not happen at all. In their view, people in poverty don't just need to power a tiny refrigerator or single light bulb at home; they need abundant, affordable energy at home and at work.

Africa's needs are too great to be met solely with expensive, intermittent green energy technologies, its finances too stretched to afford carbon-neutral energy, Moore and Ramachandran emphasize. Keeping Africa poor "to fight climate change" will do nothing to help the people most affected by it.

Unfortunately, President Biden, his EU allies and the "green 450" corporate crowd don't seem to understand or care about these basic concepts.

This arrogance makes it quite clear that "Our Common Future" is still in the future, if at all. The difference is that Africans are no longer waiting for the UN, International Monetary Fund, World Bank, or even African Development Bank to finally invest in sorely needed African infrastructure. By hook or by crook, Africans are committed to using whatever resources are available to do the job – even if it means aligning with Chinese banks, Chinese mining companies, and Chinese terms and conditions.

The Infrastructure Plan That Wasn't

By Gary L. Wickert

Rush Limbaugh was notorious for saying that, "Words mean something." But who better than liberal politicians to pollute just about everything in our culture, including the meaning of words. Even the words "man" and "woman" seemingly no longer mean what they mean if you are listening to just about any Democrat in the age of a Democratic Party hijacked by the far, radical left. But in particular, the "American Jobs Plan"—Biden's $2.3 trillion behemeth bill which does just about everything except repair and build infrastructure and contribute toward the creation of new jobs—is about as speciously-named since the "Affordable Care Act." It's the legislative equivalent of a blatant lie.

The "American Jobs Plan" is the second installment of a Monopoly money plank through which his handlers purport to implement their radical agenda. It is itself speciously named "Build Back Better." Clearly, somebody in the Biden Administration is obsessed with alliteration. But more dangerous, also obsessed with lying to the American people. The first installment of this agenda, the $1.9 trillion "American Rescue Plan" (aka "COVID Relief Bill"), passed in March and borrowed from future generations in order to send $1,400 checks to millions of Americans and $440 billion to state and local governments…especially those already in financial trouble due to government employee union pension underfunding. It contained a job-killing minimum wage hike.

The American Jobs Plan does just about everything but repair and upgrade America's infrastructure. Dictionary.com defines "infrastructure" as "the basic physical and organizational structures and facilities (e.g. buildings, roads, power supplies) needed for the operation of a society or enterprise." The $2.3 trillion spending package allocates huge sums of money to the most radical of left-wing agendas, including the following:

- Supporting unions
- Job-killing minimum wage hike
- Affordable housing in "underserved" areas
- "Community investment" in vulnerable communities
- Job creation in clean energy sector
- Job training for formerly incarcerated individuals
- Building new public schools
- Upgrade child care facilities
- A new office at the Commerce Department
- Community college infrastructures
- Modernizing the Veteran's Administration
- Expands tax credits to incentivize child care centers

The so-called Jobs Plan amounts to no more than a massive federal power grab and does injustice to the English language by using the word "infrastructure." Global warming conspiracists are giddy over the bill because it makes a huge investment in climate change-related priorities. Spending on the mythical anthropogenic global warming problem is roughly ten times greater than it was in Barack Obama's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009. The plan bundles climate change wish list items with other economic and social investment measures which have nothing at all to do with U.S. infrastructure.

The justification for addressing climate change in an infrastructure bill is that "climate change is accelerating deterioration as extreme weather batters infrastructure." You can't make this stuff up. That is exactly what the liberal Center for Strategic & International Studies (CSIS)—another misuse of the English language—has said about it. It throws $85 billion at public transit and $80 billion for the money-losing Amtrak, because "the lifecycle greenhouse gas emissions of public transit is consistently lower than those of cars." It throws $174 billion at electric vehicles; again, nothing at all to do with infrastructure.

The plan also blatantly says that power and social inequality have been playing a role in shaping "human infrastructure" (I didn't make that up), so it targets "climate investments" at "disadvantaged communities." Yeah, that's exactly what those communities are holding their breath for; climate change fixes. The CSIS claims that an additional $12 billion is tossed to workers "penalized by structural racism and economic inequities, especially people of color, women, and formerly incarcerated individuals." So much for infrastructure.

President Biden has referred to his new "Jobs Plan" as a "once-in-a-generation investment." He lied and said that it would be responsible for the creation of 19 million new jobs. How do we know? Because Biden later changed his tune and said it would only create 2.7 million jobs. Instead, the American Jobs Plan is nothing more than a potpourri of radical, left-wing wish list items which will mortgage the future of our children and grandchildren, while doing very little to actually repair America's infrastructure.

The Iniquity of Socialism; enter the "We the People" Movement

By Alti Nunio

People across our country and the world are talking about equity. Some organizations are saying that we need a new path. One that is just and fair, and creates inclusion into a society in which all humans can participate, prosper, and reach their full potential.1 They call this equity, and it has a large racial reform and redistribution component. It's really just the rebirth of an old failed attempt to corrupt our government. It's simply a new disguise for socialism. Part of the socialist's agenda has always been to establish conflicts with classes and races of people, destroy the nuclear family, and eliminate religion. Another aspect is to infiltrate a government (like America) and to create confusion, division and hatred. The more polarized the populace becomes, the better the chances the socialist movement can succeed.

The call for equity comes after decades of US government programs paid by our tax money from "we the people". That is, we individuals, small businesses and corporations. But it appears in many ways that those government programs have failed and the money spent was largely wasted. They wouldn't be talking about "equity" if all the time and money that they spent had properly solved this issue that's been hovering for over 70 years. Equity is intended to confuse people and make them feel shame and guilt, but It's really being used to promote socialism. And if we do not conform to their beliefs and message, we will be attacked and degraded as racists and be subject to their Cancel Culture, Critical Race Theory, bullying and threats. These are all intended to create fear if anyone dares to speak out for what they truly believe.

"Equity" is now their call for more social and racial reforms, and more money. A lot more money. You see, they are using our tax money to create socialist programs that destroy our personal freedoms. They intend to pay for theses programs by raising the taxes on the super wealthy (which will trickle down to everyone) and quickly pushing through a multi-trillion-dollar budget which the majority was originally targeted for infrastructure. Much of the money is hidden in socialist agendas such as free college and kindergarten, healthcare for immigrants, defunding the police in lieu of social services and community programs. You see the word "Equity" is now another play on words in the socialist movement.

My question for you is how do we address this issue? Will it be by the government, by corporations, or by individuals? I think you know the answer. I believe that true equity is in the individual and their means to live a productive life in the freest country in the world. In the next year, we all need to petition our congressional and senate representatives for significant reform in the US election system both at the state and federal level. The election fraud that occurred in the 2020 election must be addressed, not by the Left-written proposed HR-1/S-1 Bill, but by a bi-partisan HR-2/S-2 Bill with unified support from both the House and Senate (H/S). This is the main priority for the future of our democracy.

The false equity just revealed is actually widespread socialism in the US by people really acting out through iniquity. Wickedness in their lies regarding people's deeds, actions, events, character along with their lack of integrity. Wickedness in the disguise of peaceful protests that turn into violence, destruction, injuries and death of many innocent people. Wickedness in their call to defund the police based on isolated incidents of poor law enforcement during criminal acts in communities. Wickedness in their impatience for our judicial system to carry out investigations and due process. Wickedness in creating a pandemic from a humanly engineered virus, falsifying data, and killing millions of innocent people, mainly the elderly. Wickedness of Big Tech and mainstream media (MSM) controlling the airwaves of information and news during the pandemic and election. Wickedness in using the pandemic to overturn voting laws, create hundreds of thousands of electronic votes and manipulate the voting systems through fraud. Wickedness in their attempt to ruin a democracy.

Wickedness for what? For power and control in a new socialist system that will increase taxation, pay tribute to special interest groups and more socialists, devalue the dollar, increase inflation, destroy public safety, decrease opportunity for true equity and individual prosperity, allow criminals and thieves to run rampant, and force people into vaccinations without considering individual medical conditions or personal opinions. Many individuals on many different levels are complicit in these evil actions. Make no mistake, these are all iniquitable endeavors undertaken through socialistic ambitions.

Equity truly is the United States of America, the freest most prosperous country of all time for 245 years! The land of the free where each individual is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is based on one of the greatest constitutions of all time and backed by a bill of rights. Iniquity, on the other hand, is equivalent to those who try to dismantle and destroy America, through physical means of destruction of property and human life (riots) and through ideological means, namely socialism. Karl Marx was an intrepid human being whose ideologies have been used by some of the most grievous, murderous and corrupt individuals the world has known. He and his ideologies are truly evil and they conspire to take away human beings God given freedoms.

Our election system has been overturned by those who believe in Karl Marx and his socialistic ideologies. They have instilled iniquity on all Americans of all races and it is spreading throughout the world. This is a call to wake up humanity, wherever you live on planet earth, but especially to Americans of all races, creeds, colors and religions who comprise the beacon to the world.

The book The Naked Communist provided a historical background of Marx and a summary of how he established socialism ideology and how it mutated into communism. This playbook was revealed by Cleon Skousen back in 1958. It's all within the pages. Their true agendas, which are many, including 1) the destruction of the nuclear family unit, 2) a dependency on government versus family and community, 3) the elimination of religion from society and an individuals' freedom to believe in God or whatever being they choose to believe in, and 4) an individual's ability to work hard and earn money and property thereby

The Fourth Industrial Revolution = Planned Dystopia

By Kathleen Marquardt

Klaus Schwab has been someone in the background of global machinations for many decades. He is the founder and executive chairman of the World Economic Forum (WEF) which he formed in 1971 (fifty years ago) as an International NGO (one of the way too many "civil society" partners of the United Nations). The majority of these NGOs are there to promote and embed Agenda 21/2030/The Green New Deal into every country, no matter how small, in the world. Schwab's WEF was set up to push Public-Private Cooperation, in other words, fascism, across the globe.

Kimberly Amadeo, President of World Money Watch defines fascism as: "a brutal economic system in which a supreme leader and their government controls the private entities that own the factors of production. The four factors are entrepreneurship, capital goods, natural resources, and labor. A central planning authority directs company leaders to work in the national interest, which actively suppresses those who oppose it".

To simplify and clarify what Public-Private Partnerships PPPs) are:

In a speech at the Freedom 21 National Conference in Dallas in 2007, Tom DeWeese, president of American Policy Center, noted:

During the first years of the Clinton Administration in the early 1990s, there was much fanfare about a new policy to "reinvent government." It was sold as a way to make government more efficient and less costly. It would, said its proponents, "bring business technologies to public service."

Pro-business, anti-big-government conservatives and libertarians were intrigued. The backbone of the plan was a call for "public/private

China was preparing for a Third World War with biological weapons - including coronavirus - SIX years ago

According to dossier produced by the People's Liberation Army in 2015 and uncovered by the US State Department

By Tom Pyman, for MailOnline and Mark Nicol, Diplomacy Editor for The Daily Mail, May 8, 2021

Chinese scientists have been preparing for a Third World War fought with biological and genetic weapons including coronavirus for the last six years, according to a document obtained by US investigators.

The bombshell paper, accessed by the US State Department, insists they will be 'the core weapon for victory' in such a conflict, even outlining the perfect conditions to release a bioweapon, and documenting the impact it would have on 'the enemy's medical system'.

This latest evidence that Beijing considered the military potential of SARS coronaviruses from as early as 2015 has also raised fresh fears over the cause of Covid-19, with some officials still believing the virus could have escaped from a Chinese lab.

The dossier by People's Liberation Army scientists and health officials, details of which were reported in The Australian, examined the manipulation of diseases to make weapons 'in a way never seen before'.

Senior government figures say it 'raises major concerns' over the intentions of those close to Chinese President Xi Jinping amid growing fears about the country's lack of regulation over its activity in laboratories.

The authors of the document insist that a third world war 'will be biological', unlike the first two wars which were described as chemical and nuclear respectively.

Referencing research which suggested the two atomic bombs dropped on Japan forced them to surrender, and bringing about the end of WWII, they claim bioweapons will be 'the core weapon for victory' in a third world war.

The document also outlines the ideal conditions to release a bioweapon and cause maximum damage.

The scientists say such attacks should not be carried out in the middle of a clear day, as intense sunlight can damage the pathogens, while rain or snow can affect the aerosol particles.

Instead, it should be released at night, or at dawn, dusk, or under cloudy weather, with 'a stable wind direction...so that the aerosol can float into the target area'.

Meanwhile, the research also notes that such an attack would result in a surge of patients requiring hospital treatment, which then 'could cause the enemy's medical system to collapse'.

Other concerns include China's 'Gain of Function' research at the Wuhan Institute of Virology - near where the first Covid outbreak was discovered - at which virologists are creating new viruses said to be more transmissible and more lethal.

MP Tom Tugendhat, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, said: 'This document raises major concerns about the ambitions of some of those who advise the top party leadership. Even under the tightest controls these weapons are dangerous.'

Chemical weapons expert Hamish de Bretton-Gordon said: 'China has thwarted all attempts to regulate and police its laboratories where such experimentation may have taken place.'

The revelation from the book What Really Happened in Wuhan was reported yesterday.

The document, New Species of Man-Made Viruses as Genetic Bioweapons, says: 'Following developments in other scientific fields, there have been major advances in the delivery of biological agents.

'For example, the new-found ability to freeze-dry micro-organisms has made it possible to store biological agents and aerosolise them during attacks.'

It has 18 authors who were working at 'high-risk' labs, analysts say.

Australian Strategic Policy ?Institute executive director Peter Jennings also raised concerns over China's biological research into coronaviruses potentially being weaponised in future.

'There is no clear distinction for research capability because whether it's used offensively or defensively is not a decision these scientists would take,' he said.

'If you are building skills ostensibly to protect your military from a biological attack, you're at the same time giving your military a capacity to use these weapons ?offensively. You can't separate the two.'

Intelligence agencies suspect Covid-19 may be the result of an inadvertent Wuhan lab leak. But as yet there is no evidence to suggest it was intentionally released.

Only this week, Brazil President Jair Bolsonaro appeared to strongly criticise China by accusing it of creating Covid to spark a chemical 'warfare.'

The comments were made during a press conference on Wednesday as the hardline leader sought to further distance himself from the growing attacks over his domestic handling of a pandemic that has produced the second-highest death toll in the world.

'It's a new virus. Nobody knows whether it was born in a laboratory or because a human ate some animal they shouldn't have,' Bolsonaro said.

'But it is there. The military knows what chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare. Are we not facing a new war? Which country has grown its GDP the most? I will not tell you.'

While Bolsonaro did not name China in his speech, data from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development showed that China was the only G20 member whose GDP showed a growth during the pandemic in 2020, expanding by 2.3%.

And the World Health Organization chief said as recently as March that all theories on the origins of Covid-19 remained open after reading the WHO-China study – despite the claim the report dismissed the notion that the virus escaped from a lab as 'extremely unlikely'.

Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said all of the hypotheses are 'on the table' and require further investigation after reading the report from the international experts' mission to Wuhan.

But his comments came just hours after it emerged the report dismissed the lab leak theory and said the transmission of the virus from bats to humans through another animal is the most likely scenario.

The report's release was repeatedly delayed, raising questions about whether the Chinese side was trying to skew the conclusions to prevent blame for the pandemic falling on China.

Critics including ex-President Trump have accused the WHO of parroting Chinese propaganda on the virus since the outbreak was first announced to the world.

The comments by Dr Tedros came after New York Republican Representative Lee Zeldin slammed China for 'covering up to the world the pandemic's origins', while the WHO 'has played along time and time again'.

Meanwhile, Dr Anthony Fauci, President Biden's chief medical adviser, revealed he has 'concerns' over the WHO's controversial fact-finding mission.

Repeated delays in the report's release raised questions about whether the Chinese side was trying to skew its conclusions.

'We've got real concerns about the methodology and the process that went into that report, including the fact that the government in Beijing apparently helped to write it,' U.S. Secretary of State Antony Blinken said in a recent CNN interview.

China rejected that criticism and accused the US of 'exerting political pressure' on the fact-finding mission experts.

'The US has been speaking out on the report. By doing this, isn't the U.S. trying to exert political pressure on the members of the WHO expert group?' asked Foreign Ministry spokesperson Zhao Lijian.

Pentagon Coup!

RRN cannot confirm Trump's presence, we can now authenticate earlier reports that pointed to a dramatic shift in power at the nation's most fortified structure.

On April 14, two days before the Pentagon Protection Force turned away a shocked and confused Biden, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Mark A. Milley summoned the 7 other Joint Chiefs to the Pentagon for an emergency meeting, according to a confidential source involved in Trump's mission to eliminate Deep State operatives throughout the nation.

Gen. Milley, our source said, lambasted his colleagues for allowing high-ranking officers from all branches of the U.S. Armed Forces to undermine Biden's presidency. Gen. Milley said Biden was the democratically elected President of the United States, and that all armed forces personnel, from the lowest private to the highest general, had a patriotic duty to support and protect Democracy, Joseph Biden, and Kamala Harris.

"From what we know, he went off, ballistic-like. He was a cursing machine, swearing at and excoriating these highly decorated, lifelong members of our country's military. He said he'd heard they were helping Trump do what he called 'secret and illegal arrests' of prominent active and retired politicians. He kept blasting them and told them he was going to recommend that Biden and Harris fire them," our source said.

Gen. Milley reportedly offered the other Joint Chiefs of Staff a final chance to abandon their allegiance to Donald J. Trump and swear fealty to Joseph R. Biden and Kamala Harris.

Of all the Chiefs, only one leapt to his feet in support of Biden. Gen. Daniel R. Hokanson, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, denounced Donald Trump and told Gen. Milley that he and the National Guard would honor their oath to the Constitution He said they were prepared to defend Biden's presidency with their lives, if necessary.

Our source said Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps David H. Berger, a longtime supporter of Donald Trump, passed Gen. Milley an envelope. The envelope held an arrest warrant issued by the U.S. Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps. It named Gen. Milley as a traitor to America and its people.

"Except for you and this coward," Gen. Berger said, pointing at Gen. Hokanson, "we all support this great nation and what it stands for, and we reject the forces of darkness destroying what our Founding Fathers worked so hard to codify. We stand for a nation, not a man. Why are you so eager to say Kamala Harris's name in every sentence with Biden's name? We know why."

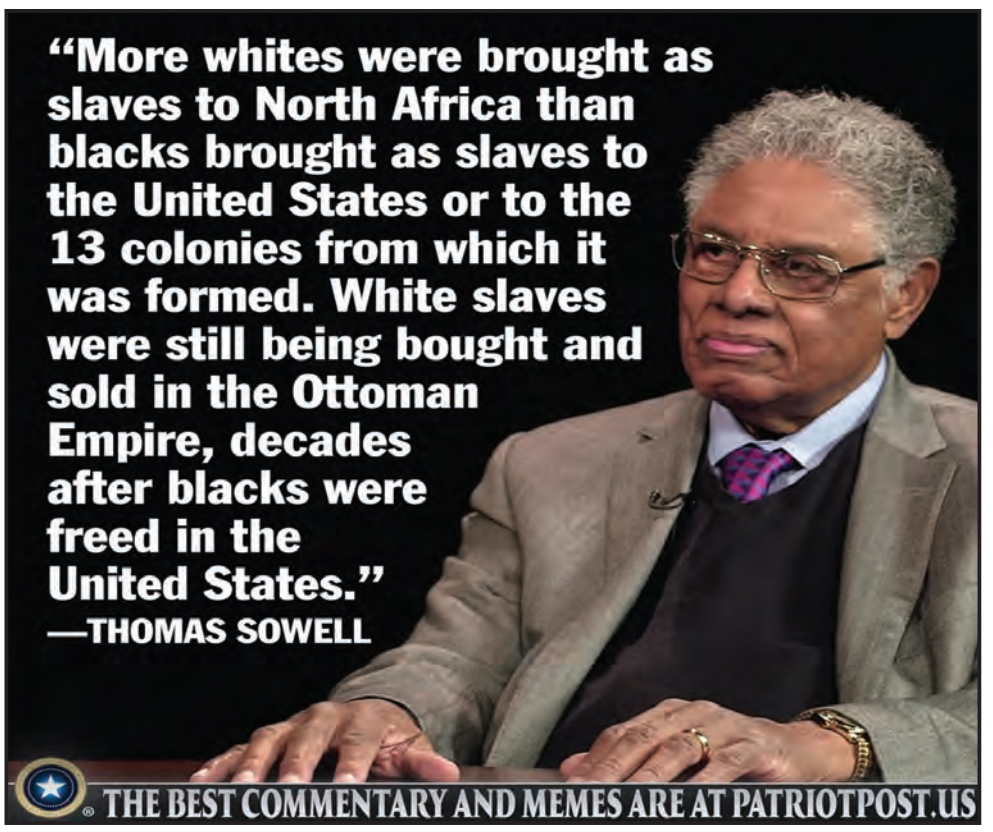
Gen. Milley, our source added, shredded the warrant, calling it a joke, and promised Gen. Berger he would hang for treasonous behavior.

"If anyone hangs, it won't be me," Gen. Berger reportedly said. "We've been expecting this for a long time."

A dozen armed members of the Pentagon Protection Force entered the conference room and handcuffed Generals Milley and Hokanson.

In closing, our source said Milley and Hokanson have since been shipped to Guantanamo Bay, where they will ultimately answer to a military tribunal.

Asked if Donald J. Trump was at the Pentagon on April 16, our source replied: "I cannot say yes or not. I can tell that what's happening now is a prelude to his reinauguration on Independence Day."



GOVERNMENT CIRCUS

Today, president Biden, like Buchanan, is governing a nation deeply divided over racial equity, wealth inequality, massive debt, open borders and illegal immigration. Biden has adopted a governing stance similar to Buchanan's, do nothing to heal the divide and tear off any remaining stitches holding the union together. Taking this path begs the question: Will Joe Biden be the 21st century James Buchanan?

The philosopher, George Santayana wrote, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." Comparing the campaigns of Buchanan and Biden, the promises each made, and the intentional avoidance of both presidents to address extraordinary tensions in the nation, we can only hope that president Biden finds the courage to change course before it is too late.

Biden and Buchanan: both lifetime politicians

Buchanan and Biden both had long careers in politics before assuming the presidency. Buchanan was a member of the Pennsylvania legislature, a Congressman and Senator from Pennsylvania, Secretary of State, and Ambassador to Great Britain and Russia. Biden was literally in government his entire life as a Senator from Delaware and vice president of the U.S.

Biden and Buchanan ran similar campaigns for president

Buchanan and Biden were regular contenders for the Democrat party nomination throughout their careers. Buchanan sought the presidency in 1844, 1848, 1852 and finally secured the nomination in 1856. Biden unsuccessfully sought the Democrat nomination for over thirty years, pitifully losing primaries in 1988 and 2008. Finally, in 2020 he secured the nomination.

Buchanan and Biden found excuses to avoid discussing the divisive issues facing the nation. During the 1856 campaign, Buchanan was serving as Ambassador to Great Britain and could not actively campaign for president. His campaigning was limited to writing letters pledging to uphold the Democrat platform. Biden used the pandemic as an excuse to sit in his basement in Delaware.

An even more odd similarity, neither man strenuously sought the presidency in the year they secured their nominations. Rather both relied on others to make them look acceptable. Simply, by avoiding active campaigns and any discussion of the issues, Buchanan and Biden secured the Democrat nominations in troubled times.

Buchanan's two primary opponents were harmed by taking strong positions on the slavery issue. President Franklin Pierce held pro-slavery views and Senator Stephen Douglas was the primary sponsor of the Kansas-Nebraska Act, a law allowing for popular sovereignty over the slavery issue in the new territories. Its passage resulted in violent uprisings causing Pierce and Douglas to lose large numbers of convention delegates from the north and west. Additionally, Buchanan promised to only run for one term, allowing his supporters to tell Douglas that support for Buchanan would help him secure the nomination in 1860.

Buchanan was perfectly positioned to take advantage of the chaos. The prominent historian William Cooper described Buchanan as a "[A] smooth, pleasantly dull [northern] conservative," having "ideological ties to the South."

Biden had many primary opponents and a rocky path to the 2020 nomination. He finished poorly in Iowa, New Hampshire and Nevada to Bernie Sanders, an articulate, energetic, socialist. Biden's candidacy was in "roadkill" and "also ran" status until Congressman James Clyburn (D-SC) endorsed him in the South Carolina primary. Clyburn's endorsement gave him huge support from the black community and delivered Biden's first ever primary win in thirty years of running. In fact, it was the first time Biden had ever received more than 1? % of the vote, his high in 2008.

The deal sealing the Clyburn endorsement however, was Biden's willingness to follow Clyburn's instructions and publicly announce in the South Carolina presidential primary debate that he would nominate a black women to the U.S. Supreme Court. With that promise Biden collected on Clyburn's offer and won South Carolina with 49% of the vote. From that time forward, the Democrat Party lined up behind Biden, whose competitors, except the socialist Sanders, dropped out almost immediately.

Like Buchanan, Biden was out of sight most of the campaign. Buchanan rarely addressed the riots over the Kansas-Nebraska Act. Biden did not address the riots in major U.S. cities. Biden ran a "bunker strategy" from the basement of his home. He made few statements or public appearances. And like Buchanan, he was far from exciting. His personality is described as driven to seek approval, wanting others to view him as a friend, and often praised and flattered others as an image of good will. Buchanan and Biden, seemingly nice guys achieved victory based on avoidance of the issues and promises to support specific people in the future.

Now that Biden is President, does he continue to track Buchanan's disastrous presidency?

While Biden promised to unify the nation, his initial presidential actions are throwing gasoline on the flames of division, just as Buchanan did in his initial months in office. In just two months Biden:

1.issued 43 Executive Orders and Presidential Memorandum that reversed almost every policy and de-regulatory enactment of the Trump administration;

2.demonstrated his support for socialist

Sen. Nass Calls for Floor Votes Next Week on all Senate Election Reform Bills

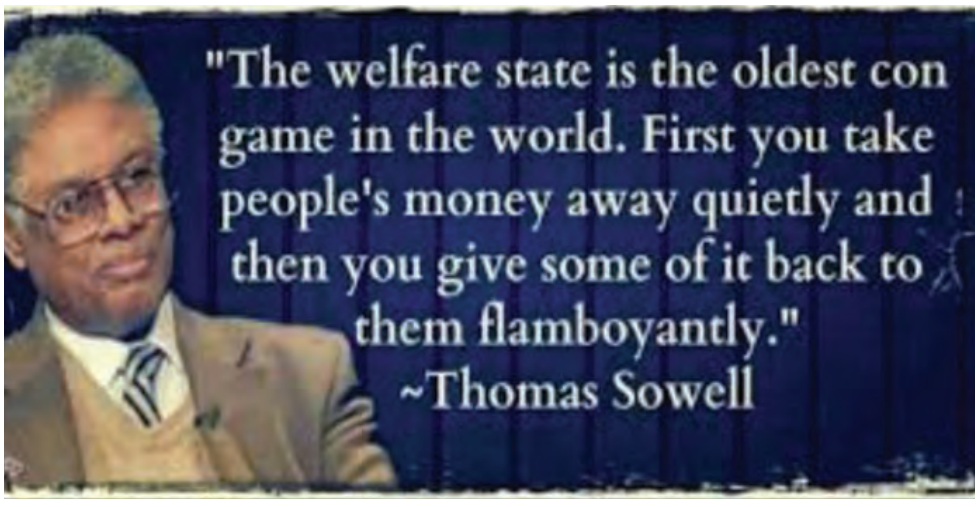
Senator Steve Nass (R-Whitewater) issued the following statement today regarding unacceptable delays in the State Senate in advancing eight election reform bills (SB 203, SB 204, SB 205, SB 206, SB 209, SB 211, SB 212 and SB 214) introduced on March 16, 2021 and referred that day to the Senate Elections, Election Process Reform and Ethics Committee.

The State Senate is scheduled to be in floor session for only one week in May (May 11-13). Currently, there are no election reform bills scheduled for a floor vote. Senator Nass called on Senate Majority Leader Devin LeMahieu and Senate President Chris Kapenga to end the unacceptable stalling of the committee chair in advancing these reform bills:

"As the Senate Majority Leader and Senate President, you were elected by the Senate Republican Caucus to lead this body in meeting the many challenges facing our constituents and to further advance the conservative agenda supported by the voters in this state through the election of 21 Republicans in a chamber with 33 members.

The Wisconsin State Senate is scheduled to be in session one week during the month of May (May 11-13). As of today, all of the significant election reform bills are stalled in the Senate Elections, Election Process Reform and Ethics Committee. The authors of these bills have been working to get these bills out of committee for weeks, but have been met with resistance to action by the committee chair.

Today, I am calling on the Republican leadership of the Senate to act boldly and immediately, to schedule a floor day next week solely for the purpose of taking up all the election reform bills – No more delays and No more excuses."



Podesta Military Tribunal: Day 3 Guilty!

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, May 7, 2021

On Thursday, the Office of Military Commissions, Rear Adm. Crandall presiding, segued away from Podesta's fascination with small children and focused instead on criminal actions he had taken against Donald J. Trump and his family.

Rear Adm. Crandall showed the three-officer, all-female panel statements of guilt Podesta had written and signed prior to the tribunal and before the military had rescinded a plea deal removing capital punishment from the table. One statement described how Podesta, Hillary Clinton, and then-DNC Chairwoman Donna Brazile planned to extort Trump into dropping out of the 2016 presidential election. The plan, which was Podesta's idea, involved kidnapping Trump's youngest son, Barron, and threatening to "send him home in pieces" unless Trump followed the kidnapper's demands.

To obfuscate their participation, Podesta suggested using a third party with no ties to the DNC to hire Chinese nationals to grab Barron Trump. At the time, Barron was 10 years old and typically in the company of his mother, Melania Trump. Tuesday and Friday afternoons were the exceptions. For 2 hours on those days, Barron left his mother's side and travelled with a Secret Service detail to posh NYC toy stores like FAO Schwartz and Kidding Around, child-friendly places the SS had rigorously vetted.

"They learned the Trumps' schedule. They intended to either pay off the Secret Service or create a distraction to kidnap young Barron. This ill-conceived plot was not carried out, but that's not the point. Conspiracy to commit a crime is an actionable offense. The level of hubris is mindboggling," Rear Adm. Crandall told the panel.

Moreover, he showed the panel an email Podesta had sent to Clinton and Brazile. "Difficult but doable. Will cost a lot, probably. But if we get 'B' then 'D' will have no choice," the email read.

A reply from Brazile said, "Let's do it."

"Clinton and her minion, I mean the defendant, were publicly confident Hillary would win that election. Privately, they had an abundance of fear that Trump was going to win. So fearful they wanted to kidnap his son. A profusion of both arrogance and fear," Rear Adm. Crandall said.

After a short recess, Rear Adm. Crandall focused on a Podesta-and-Clinton-hatched plot to assassinate President Donald J. Trump during his visit to Vatican City on May 23-24, 2017.

Podesta's written confession told a horrific tale about hiring someone to murder Trump at the Apostolic Palace. In this case, the plan to kill Trump failed, but still a life was lost.

Rear Adm. Crandall read from Podesta's confession: "It was both our idea to eliminate Trump because we knew Pence would be more agreeable to work with. Hillary had connections in the Vatican, and she asked me to contact a man I knew only as Vittore Mazzi. We wired him the equivalent of $2,500,000 and told him we didn't want details, only results. He wrote back, cryptically, he would poison Trump's

Comey Begs Military: "Please Don't Kill Me!"

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, May 10, 2021

Having viewed Hillary Clinton's corpse and learned of John Podesta's impending doom, a panicked James Comey, currently a guest at GITMO, has been begging the U.S. Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps for mercy and claiming crimes he committed were always at the request of eminently more powerful Deep State figureheads.

A source involved in Trump's battle against the Deep State told Real Raw News that although Comey had agreed to cooperate with the military's ongoing investigation on Barack Hussein Obama, he has not supplied details on a specific incident for which the military wants answers. As reported previously, JAG has evidence linking Comey, Obama, and Susan Rice to an illegal airstrike that killed 16 American patriots who in 2013 had gathered at a safehouse in the Colorado wilderness to protest Obama's criminal regime.

"Comey has been dropping dimes on a bunch of people, but he isn't talking about Obama. He's the kind of guy who'd rat out his mother. Either Comey fears Obama more then he does his own execution, or he really is clueless," our source said.

But military investigators, our source added, have ample evidence connecting Comey to Obama's criminal conquests. Said evidence purportedly includes testimony of another GITMO resident and internal FBI documents the

Military Arrests James Comey

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, April 21, 2021

The U.S. military has arrested disgraced former FBI Director James Comey on charges of treason, sedition, obstruction of justice, and aiding and abetting persons actively involved in criminal behavior, Real Raw News has learned.

Donald J. Trump greenlit the Tuesday morning raid on Comey's lavish, suburban home after speaking to Marine Corps Col. John Lynch, commanding officer of the Marine Raider regiment at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. Col. Lynch committed at least two 4-man squads to the mission, said a confidential source involved in Trump's quest to depose Joseph Biden and restore America to the people.

On Tuesday at about 3:00 a.m., U.S. Marines operating on Donald Trump's authority stormed Comey's seven-bedroom, 10,700-sqaure-foot mansion in McClean, Virginia. Although most operational details are classified, our source said Raiders surprised Comey, who was half-asleep in bed, and apprehended him after he reached for a pistol underneath a pillow. Before he could palm the weapon, a Marine charged forward and struck Comey's forehead with the butt of his rifle, rendering Comey unconscious.

"Trump's people had digital surveillance on the Comey residence for quite a long time. They knew Comey's wife, Patrice, would be out of town on personal business, and none of the kids would be around visiting. Trump's been anticipating this moment a long time; it's a day of reckoning," our source said.

Trump, our source added, had authored a sealed indictment on Comey shortly after firing him on May 9, 2017. He had obtained irrefutable evidence proving that Comey, an Obama holdover, had been on Clinton's payroll and, on her authority, tried to slander the president by linking the Trump campaign to Russian Clinton guilty of murder, accessory to murder, treason, child trafficking, and other high crimes. Clinton, who had refused counsel, had uttered nary a word throughout the proceedings, and had taken Vice Adm. John G. Hannink's sentence of death with an unflinching gaze.

The hanging took place at 9:05 p.m., at once after Taps, which marks the start of quiet hours on U.S. military bases across the globe.

"The world is about to sleep quieter tonight," Vice Adm. John G. Hannink said to a small assembly that included 3 Joint Chiefs of Staff and, notably, Donald J. Trump, who, garbed in his typical dark suit and crimson tie, had arrived at GITMO earlier in the day. Michael Pompeo and former NYC Mayor Rudy Giuliani flanked him, both men having played an integral role in amassing evidence against Clinton.

Under military guard, a shackled Hillary Clinton was escorted from Camp Delta detention block to gallows made of steel latticework, with a downward swinging door beneath her feet, that the Army Corps of Engineers had erected in a clearing near Windward Point Lighthouse, on GITMO's southern edge. Affixed to a steel beam was a rectangular box with five circular, red buttons protruding from the case. In front of each button stood a uniformed soldier. Atop the platform, another soldier slipped a braided noose around Clinton's neck.

Vice Adm. Hannink addressed the execution detail: "When I say ready, and not one moment before, you will poise your left index finger in front of the button. You will keep it hovered there until I say execute, and then you five must simultaneously press your button. Only one of the five buttons will trigger the door, and none of you will ever know which button that was. Do you understand these instructions?"

"Yes, sir," the five bellowed in unison.

A chaplain and a physician climbed the 13 steps leading to the top of the platform and stood beside a soldier who was checking to ensure the noose was secure around Clinton's neck. Below them, Vice Adm. Hannink asked if Clinton wanted last rites or had any final words.

Clinton broke silence. "I'm Hillary Clinton, you can't do this to me," she said, her voice a witch's cackle.

"It's already done," Donald J. Trump shouted up at her.

"Ready." Vice Adm. Hannink nodded at the execution detail.

After a moment's pause, he gave the "execute" order, the soldiers pressed their buttons, and the grate beneath Clinton's feet swung open. Her legs and feet, still shackled at the ankles, twitched a moment or two, then stopped.

The rope was cut, and Clinton's lifeless body lie sprawled in a damp patch of grass. The physician present checked her vitals and declared her dead.

A confidential source involved in Trump's mission to obliterate the Deep State said the overall mood was somber and melancholy; there was no celebration, no jubilation, just an atmosphere of contentedness, an acknowledgement that what had to be done, was done. The nature of her crimes overshadowed celebratory thought. But a four-decade reign of terror had come to an end.

"As much as Trump hated her, this was purely business. He cares about the children who suffered at her hands more than he cares about what she did to him. Yes, her demise sends a signal to the Deep State. But Trump knows there are many more to go, and he won't celebrate till the job is done," our source said.

environmental proposals, by canceling Trump's major permit approvals for billion-dollar oil and gas pipeline projects, and for drilling on federal lands, decisions that terminated tens of thousands of good paying jobs and revenues for energy producing states;

3.rejoined the Paris Climate Accord, a policy that will result in massive regulatory controls on U.S. energy and manufacturing industries; thereby increasing the costs of consumer purchases;

4.immediately stopped construction of the border wall between the U.S. and Mexico and literally opened the borders of our country to unlimited illegal immigration, the operation of drug cartels and foreign terrorists;

5.pushed through a massive $1.9 trillion dollar spending bill under the guise of Covid-19 relief, yet less than ten percent of the monies went to pandemic type efforts. The remaining ninety percent went to state and local governments, schools, unions, child tax credits, Obama Care subsidies and supportive corporations;

6.continuously blaming the Trump administration for every problem of the Biden administration, including the riots at the Capitol, the mess on the southern border and the lack of vaccines;

7.supported the first impeachment of a president after he left office; and the first time ever a president was impeached twice;

8.allowing the continued censorship by big tech of conservative media and speech; and

9.is open to the use of "Truth Commissions," a group of government officials to investigate the activities of the Trump administration and other Americans deemed objectionable. Historically these commissions press (i.e., pressure) individuals to reveal so called, hidden facts outside of the established constitutional proceedings. These types of tactic are generally used in authoritarian and third - world countries to punish political opponents.

These first two months of the Biden administration point to the use of massive federal powers to punish those deemed objectionable, to pilfer the treasury of the nation to reward friends, to censor differing political opinions and to impose a massive number of new regulations on the American people. All actions meant to divide rather than unify. All actions without one single vote from an opposition party. Buchanan acted to divide the nation. He caused horrible harm to the nation. Hopefully, president Biden will return to his stated belief in unity before it is too late?

technologies – to run the entire USA – and we're looking at tens of billions of tons of metals and minerals, trillions of tons of ores, and mines, processing plants and factories all over the world.

Team Biden claims "renewable" energy is "carbon-free." It gets away with this deception by looking only at electricity generation after turbines and panels are installed – and ignoring how the raw materials are extracted and processed and how the technologies are manufactured ... far from the United States ... using fossil fuels every step of the way ... under minimal to nonexistent laws for air and water pollution control, habitat and wildlife protection, mined land reclamation, child and slave labor, and workplace safety.

Unencumbered by Paris climate treaty restrictions, emerging economies will gladly sell us "green, renewable" technologies that send electricity costs soaring to several times today's prices and drive factories and industries out of business, unable to compete with China and India.

The past winter's Texas blackout will become commonplace. Wind electricity generation plummeted 93% – but natural gas generation rocketed 450% to make up the difference, even though pipelines could not supply enough fuel, because legislators and regulators had decreed that pipeline compressors run off the compromised grid, instead of on gas from the pipelines. Under the GND, though, there won't be any gas generation backup – just freezing jobless in the dark.

Climate czar and private jetsetter John Kerry says unemployed oil and factory workers will get "good jobs" making solar panels. In reality, those jobs will be overseas. Americans workers will only assemble, install, maintain, repair, remove, recycle and landfill imported green tech. American families and businesses will be forced to rip out trillions of dollars of perfectly good gas furnaces, ovens, stoves, water heaters, vehicles and industrial systems – and spend more trillions replacing them with expensive new GND-approved equipment, backup batteries and upgraded electrical systems to handle the extra loads.

And this entire, vastly expanded all-electric world will be expected to function with unreliable, weather-dependent wind and solar power. (All this in a USA where opinion surveys have found the average citizen is willing to pay a minuscule $2-50 per year to reduce US dependence on fossil fuels and (supposedly) keep global average temperatures from rising any higher.)

President Biden's inability to comprehend these realities may be due to his diminished mental capacity. But it could also be the result of rarely having to exercise his mind – in a political arena where woke, hard-green, climate-obsessed, cancel-culture ideologues permit no discussion, questions or dissent; where advisors, cabinet members, regulators and legislators are of the same mindset, or too timid to speak up; and where schools, news and social media, Big Tech, government agencies, corporate chiefs and even book publishers likewise silence, ignore, punish and banish anyone who offers differing views.

We can only hope enough citizens pound enough sense into our ruling classes to eliminate their belief in MAGIC, climate monsters and other countries crazy enough to follow Mr. Biden into economic suicide.

My College Experience

"Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth." 2 Timothy 3:7

By Riley J. Hood-Milwaukee County Constitution Party

In January of 2010, I received a phone call from an ITT-Tech recruiter. I thought, "I'm 45 years old, I am out of work. 28 years re-education through hard labor is enough, I would like to work in an office from now on." I went down, and enrolled at ITT, and was in their Computer Drafting and Design Program. I thought college students were there to learn, and improve their lives; and then there was the reality. The reality was a systemic failure, in many ways forced upon the college administration by our federal government. Most of the Staff at ITT-Tech cared about what they were teaching, but several things were grossly wrong.

I was charged $6,200 dollars per quarter. This was the reason I couldn't continue. The goofy game is that colleges charge outlandish tuition rates and you find some else to pay for it. I was told by my department chairperson that I was the only one on campus paying my own way. Everyone else was getting a Pell Grant, or other grants. I was a 4.0 plus student, yet I couldn't get academic scholarships. Even these were reserved for affirmative action minorities. I saw appalling behavior by some who did receive grants. I heard several students openly bragging about attending the requisite five weeks, then going out and partying the money away, or buying a car with it etc. A girl in my study group, who stayed in school, was a minority, 17, and pregnant. She was a nice person, but couldn't concentrate and even after my helping her; she was averaging 74 and getting D's in her classes. She was playing hearts on computer when she should have using AutoCAD. Yet she had so many scholarships, she had trouble filling out the paperwork. Another lady failed completely, she was attending on a Pell Grant, and federal loans. As for me, the GI Bill ended in 1977, and until 1992, there was the VEAP program, which I had 8,100 dollars in, but that money was lost. I was paying out of my savings. When I was told a two-year degree would not land me a job, I started looking for work.

When I was in Milwaukee Public Schools, student gangsters controlled certain areas creating no-go zones. Adult gangsters roamed the hallway. They would enter with the help of a member at the school, who would open a side door, and run rough shod over anyone they could get their hands on. The Police would only act when they had a team; giving the gangs a certain amount of time before any response would occur. Gangs would leave after 15 to minutes as the average response time was that slow. The teachers were too cowardly to restrain any bad behavior. In one of my classes, a black student stood on his desk, grabbed his crotch, and starting saying over and over, "I'm from the ghetto." Our teacher told us we all were responsible for his "low self-esteem."

I said all that about MPS, because some of it applied to ITT. There were gangsters in the hall, in the class, and in the student Library. One young black man was rapping at the top of his lungs, while I was doing my AutoCAD drawings. The Librarian was too afraid to say anything to him. I had to tell him to shut up. In my Technical Basics class, a Hispanic gangster would talk over me and make fun of me whenever the teacher called on me. The teacher was too afraid to do anything. I finally told this spoiled little boy, "I'll have my respect from you, I'm speaking." This brat was also going to school on your taxes. One could reason, if he is so tough, why is here and not on the corner? The answer is simple, ITT-Tech was his corner. I was there to learn. He was there to deal drugs.

In an effort to expand "free" government education to "all," a socialist concept; the federal government has achieved a politically correct education for politically correct student body. The Constitution Party of Wisconsin Platform is quite clear: "Since the Constitution grants the Federal Government no authority over education, the 10th Amendment applies: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people." Education should be free from all federal government subsidies, vouchers, tax incentives, and loans." "The State Government has no legitimate role in either subsidizing or regulating education. We support an orderly transition to free market education including Home Education and Private Schools." Ronald Reagan promised to undo the Federal Department of Education, but didn't keep his word. Today, we have Common Core, and the stupidity it creates. I assure you Common Core will be replaced with something even nastier, like critical race theory. You should not trust the people who have created the problem in the first place to fix it. You can do something for your children, get them out of Public School. You are placing your lambs into the care of wolves. A Christian education should prepare children to deal with unbelievers and opponents, because whether it is college, the military or work, by the time you are 18, you are an adult and into the world we must go.

Also speaking will be Dr. Dan R. Herro, EdD. Dan is an expert in the field of K-12 curriculum and instruction. Dan has been teaching in Wisconsin K-12 public schools for 14 years. He is Vice Chairman of the Board of Ethics in Beloit and is the CPoW's Membership Coordinator.

In recent years, Dan has noticed a reduced focus on individual college and career readiness in the public K-12 curriculum, in favor of the idea that our students are somehow victims of a corrupt system of capitalism and that they should focus on literature and writing projects that advocate for a wide array of socialist principles, systems, and structures. During the 2019-20 and 2020-21 school years, the socialist progressive public-school policymakers have relegated Wisconsin students, including Dan's students, to learning from home or, at most, half time in school. Dan has fought against this by delivering packets, replacing broken technology, and working nights and weekends with students to make up for the learning loss from these terrible progressive policies. Dan is the recipient of a Beloit Rotary Teacher of the Month award for December 2020.

More speakers will be added to the event! Hope to see you there! DoubleTree by Hilton Hotel Milwaukee, 18155 Bluemound Road Brookfield, Wisconsin 53045, 1-262-792-1212

The Muslim Report: Bangladesh

"Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again," Romans 8:34a

By Riley J. Hood—Milwaukee County Constitution Party

Christians are 1% of the Bangladeshi population, and the bottom 1%. In the Sylet hills of Northern Bangladesh, there are many Tea Plantations, which are worked by the poorest of the poor. Often, these workers are reduced to peonage, illiteracy, and a lack of education. Many of these workers are your fellow Christians. This is typical treatment at the hands of Muslims.

Fulmoni is a 67yr-old widow, who became a Christian along with her husband, her husband died in 2019. Her sons reject her, and because of the COVID-19 lockdown she can't work as a maid. She is surviving on aid from Christians in the west. How many more are not as blessed?

Muslims go door to door to Hindu and especially Christian families offering a "free education" for their children. The reality is one of forced confinement and forced conversion to Islam.

There are many Rohingya Muslim refugees in Bangladesh. These people if not sent back to Burma will become Islamic citizens of Bangladesh, but contrary to silly liberal propaganda, Muslims fight each other when they are no Christians to destroy, because violence is embedded in Quran. How does it work? "You are a renegade infidel." "I am descended from 'the prophet' and you are not." (That is the essence of the Sunni-Shia controversy. Khomeini wore a black rag on his head as opposed to a white one, because he claims "prophetic descent.") The Milwaukee County Constitution Party asserts the Islamic worldview, based on Jihad and Submission is incompatible with freedom and Constitutionally limited government. Muslims are emotionally driven brats given to armed temper tantrums, and are in need a strong man to suppress their killing urges.

Le Pen Cleared Of Breaking Hate Speech Laws For Posting Images Of Isis Atrocities

By Paul Joseph Watson, May 6, 2021

Marine Le Pen

Populist leader Marine Le Pen has been cleared of violating hate speech laws after she was ludicrously charged for posting images of ISIS atrocities in an effort to illustrate the barbarity of ISIS.

Le Pen originally posted the images in 2015 as a rebuttal to comparisons that were being made between her National Front party and Islamic jihadists.

"This is what Daesh is," she wrote under the photos, which showed ISIS militants executing people.

Despite posting the photos in an effort to denounce ISIS, Le Pen was accused of "disseminating violent messages that could seriously harm human dignity," a charge that was never applied to media outlets or journalists who shared similar photos.

While anything other than an acquittal would have been incomprehensible, the fact that it took over 5 years to happen is absurd and undoubtedly related to Le Pen's hostility to the French establishment.

Le Pen, who has vowed to ban "Islamist ideologies" and restrict wearing of the hijab in public places, is once again expected to end up in an election run off with President Emanuel Macron, with the vote set to take place in April next year.

As we previously highlighted, it appears as though a growing segment of the French population shares her concerns.

A poll released last week found that a majority of French people support the sentiments expressed in a letter signed by active duty and retired members of the military warning that the country is heading towards a "civil war" caused by failed multiculturalism and attacks on French identity.

The Muslim Report: Indonesia

"For I, saith the Lord, will be unto her a wall of fire round about,and will be the glory in the midst of her." Zechariah 2:5

By Riley J. Hood—Milwaukee County Constitution Party

The United States of Indonesia is a de-facto "Islamic Democracy" whose official policy is a state enforced "tolerance" called Pancasila. Pancasila mean "five principles." An Islamic body representing 90 million Indonesian Muslims has spoken against labelling Christians as infidels and declaring open season upon them. Muslims don't really believe that.

The street level reality is that on Friday November 27th, 2020 in a Christian community on Sulawesi, four people were murdered by Muslims. One was beheaded, another had their throat slashed, one's neck was broken, and one was burned to death. These Muslims vandalized a Church and torched six homes. The 10 or so Muslims were not high-tech terrorists, they were machete swinging typical hate-filled monstrosities looking for unresisting people to torment, and justifying their deeds by the behavior of Mohamed, an anti-Christian man of violence. If the violence didn't happen after hearing a hate-filled sermon from a monster at the Mosque during Friday prayers, I have missed my guess.

The Milwaukee County Constitution Party asserts that schools, Bibles and other help is good and necessary, but if Christians aren't being taught to defend themselves, you are not giving them anything long term. If the lives of our brethren matter, then the right to self-defense, defense of their churches and communities is God-ordained, and must be promoted as well.

The Muslim Report: Turkmenistan

"Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." II Corinthians 3:17

By Riley J. Hood–Milwaukee County Constitution Party

In Turkmenistan, 80% of the population is Muslim, and 9% are Christian. Many of the Christians are Russian Orthodox, but there are converts from Islam who are mainly Protestant. Christianity was established in the region as early as the Third Century AD, before Islam was invented, and before Islam was imposed by violence upon the people.

The Presidency is considered to be a personality cult. The former President, Niyazov wrote a book called Ruhnama, which contained his goals for the nation. Niyazov died in 2006. President Berdymukhamedov enjoys the same status, and under the Constitution, can be President for life. The Turkmen government claims there is no poverty, but people wait in lines at stores where state subsidies and price controls have led to shortages, otherwise known as socialism. Turkmenistan has a national curfew, and you can be shot in the street after 11PM.

Church registration requires the names of 50 people on the application. The application may or may not be granted, but I'm quite certain 50 names will be added to a watch list. Police spy on Christians, raid their services and arrest them. Beating and imprisonment are common.

In 2016, home Churches were banned, while the Justice Ministry refuses to grant building licenses, citing clerical errors. When challenged, the Ministry then states that Turkmenistan is an Islamic country. Many Churches refuse to register, because to do so means government control. It means the State, and in this case, some Muslim is the head of the Church, and not our Lord Jesus Christ.

In 2020 the government didn't acknowledge the presence of Covid-19 which it believed that Muslims were immune to it. In July they locked the country down, and the rations and hunger from being without an income were deadlier than the disease they were trying to cure. In spite of restrictions, people from 27 churches attended a four-day Bible training seminar, they first of its kind in a long time, maybe ever.

While there isn't a full-blown jihad as in Egypt, Pakistan or Iran, and there isn't Sharia executions like Saudi Arabia, yet: there isn't much in the way of freedom either. Freedom is a blessing from Christianity, and Islam, contrary to what Don Blankenship says, isn't Christian. The answer isn't more libertarian excuse making, the answer is faith in Christ. What Patrick Henry said is truer than ever today, "It cannot be emphasized too clearly and too often that this nation was founded, not by religionists, but by Christians; not on religion, but on the gospel of Jesus Christ." Why Is There No Correlation between Masks, Lockdowns, and Covid Suppression?

By Anthony Rozmajzl, May 4, 2021

In the past couple of months, our esteemed public health experts have had a rough go of defending the supposedly settled science behind lockdowns and mask mandates.

White House covid-19 advisor Andy Slavitt was first on the chopping block back in mid-February, when he was reduced to parroting empty platitudes about social distancing after failing to explain why a completely open Florida had numbers no worse than a strictly locked-down California. Then comes media darling Dr. Anthony Fauci, who has had a particularly embarrassing series of public appearances of late. During a recent MSNBC interview Fauci expressed confusion and wasn't "quite sure" as to why Texas was experiencing falling cases and deaths an entire month after lifting its mask mandates and capacity restrictions. Moreover, during a hearing with Representative Jim Jordan, Fauci completely dodged Jordan's question of why Texas has lower case rates than some of the most notable lockdown states. Fauci, refusing to answer the question, simply responded that having a lockdown is not the same thing as obeying lockdowns. Fauci was correct here, but he indirectly claimed that citizens of New York and New Jersey, two notorious lockdown states, were complying less with mitigation measures than a state that had, and still has, practically none. A quick check of Google's covid-19 mobility reports lays this counterintuitive claim to rest.

Source: Data on deaths (as of Apr. 28, 2021) from the NYTimes Covid-19 Data Bot. Data on restriction rankings from the NYTimes Covid-19 Data Bot (through December 2020); Adam McCann, "States with the Fewest Coronavirus Restrictions," WalletHub, Apr. 6, 2021 (since January 2021); and Laura Hallas, Ariq Hatibie, Saptarshi Majumdar, Monika Pyarali, and Thomas Hale, "Variation in US States' Responses to COVID-19" (Blavatnik School of Government Working Paper No. BSG-WP-2020/034, December 2020).

The American Media's Agenda

When governments and media outlets around the world have successfully captured audiences by stoking fear of covid-19, the data that should so easily assuage this fear become irrelevant, and interviews like those mentioned above are simply brushed aside in favor of a fear-born allegiance to the "morally superior" government-mandated lockdowns, curfews, mask mandates, and more. This "scared straight" approach, as Bill Maher correctly described it, is the state's bludgeon of compliance.

As far as scaring citizens straight, Project Veritas has released footage showing CNN employees explaining how the network plays up the covid-19 death toll to drive numbers. Especially disgraceful was CNN technical director Charlie Chester's admission that the network doesn't like to report recovery rates because "[t]hat's not scary…. If it bleeds it leads."

CNN isn't alone in the fearmongering business. Thanks to the surplus of United States media outlets willing to churn up a disproportionate amount of negative covid-19 headlines—roughly 90 percent of covid-19 news in the United States is negative compared to 51 percent internationally—is it any surprise that nearly 70 percent of Democrats, 51 percent of Republicans, and almost 50 percent of independents think the chances of being hospitalized with covid-19 range anywhere from 20 percent to over 50 percent?

Where's the Correlation?

Government- and media-induced panic have blinded us to the data, which for the past thirteen months have consistently shown zero correlation between the timing, strength, and duration of mitigation measures and covid-19 incidence. Nowhere could this lack of correlation be more prevalent than among lockdowns and mask usage.

Leaving aside the disastrous and deadly consequences of government lockdowns—see here, here, and here—the evidence for lockdowns' ability to mitigate covid-19 mortality remains scant.

Looking at the United States, we can address the widely believed notion that states with more intense lockdowns will see fewer covid-19 deaths by plotting each state's average restriction ranking over the past thirteen months against the total number of covid-19 deaths for each state. To get the average ranking, the author averaged data from Oxford University's Blavatnik School of Government—this source ranked each state by the average time spent at a stringency index measure greater than sixty up until mid-December 2020—and WalletHub, which also ranked each state by stringency using a weighted average of various measures from January 2021 onward. Now, if the past year's worth of sanctimonious lectures from public health experts have any scientific weight behind worse.

It is a religion. Covidism is THE final, global false religion. Covidism is THE Antichurch and the Totalitarian global political machine at its side. Hence the overthrown Vatican and Antipope Bergoglio's slavering shilling for it.

The PCR tests have been intentionally done with scientifically invalidating excessive replication cycles of the sample material which generated 95% false positives for… a cold.

Now, as the DeathJabbed thralls come down with the selfsame cold that the Holy DeathJab and ONLY THE HOLY DEATHJAB can ever, ever cure, suddenly PCR tests for the post-DeathJabbed will be processed so as to eliminate fully 90% of the false positives that were used as ceaseless terror porn for the past 15 months of non-stop frenzied Covid masturbatory public cult orgies before the great masked Molochian golden calf.

And remember, their greatest font of diabolical satisfaction, flowing with the force of a thousand Hoover spillways, is the sight of you watching them openly do it to you… and you doing exactly SHIT ALL to stop them.

them, we should see a very strong negative correlation between the intensity of states' restrictions and total covid-19 deaths (see graph on page 16).

Contrary to what the public health experts have been telling us for more than a year, there is no correlation between the strength of a state's lockdown measures and total covid-19 deaths. In fact, notorious lockdown states such as New York and New Jersey have some of the worst mortality numbers to date. To blame noncompliance for these poor numbers is ridiculous on its face considering that states with no restrictions, such as Texas and Florida, have far fewer deaths than New York and New Jersey. In fact, you'll find that every state that has either removed its mask mandate or all covid-19 restrictions entirely is outperforming New York and New Jersey in terms of deaths.

The same lack of correlation can be seen when comparing average lockdown stringency with the total number of patients hospitalized who have suspected or confirmed covid-19. As a point of clarification, the author summed the current number of patients hospitalized each day to arrive at the total number of patients hospitalized. This will result in slightly inflated total numbers, since patients may spend more than one day in the hospital, but having applied the same aggregation method across all states, the total hospitalization metric still provides an accurate assessment of covid-19 hospitalizations in each state.

interference in the 2016 election. Moreover, Trump had obtained a 2015 audio recording in which Comey told Hillary Clinton he would "do whatever it takes, no matter what" to scuttle Trump's bid for the presidency. Additionally, Trump learned that Comey's faux investigation into Clinton's handling of confidential emails was merely for effect, optics to avoid the appearance of impropriety and bias.

"Comey is criminal scum. He doesn't have a modicum of decency. Trump also has the goods on him for wiretapping Trump Tower. Comey's been taken to a secure holding pending transportation to GITMO, where he'll face a military tribunal. One thing that'll come out is that when Comey got hold of Anthony Weiner's laptop, he found videos of Huma Abedin and Hillary Clinton doing some pretty terrible things to kids. Comey kept that info from the public, probably at Clinton's request," our source said.

In closing, we asked our source why, with so many arrests dropping, family and friends of the accused haven't complained to CNN or MSNBC about their loved ones being abducted in the dead of night.

"The only explanation is the Deep State is keeping them silent," our source said. "If it became officially known that people like Clinton, Podesta, Abedin, and now Comey have been nabbed by the military, it would weaken the Deep State's hold on society—because it would show they are losing. And the Deep Staters always want to give the appearance of winning. They won't be able to for much longer."

"Don't Kill Me!"

military had obtained from a computer server Comey had neglected to purge after the Colorado airstrike. Speculatively, the human testimony came from former CIA Director John Brennan, who arrived at GITMO on 25 March. As Obama's spook-in-chief, Brennan aided Obama's war of terror on the American citizenry.

Digital documents, our source said, included an FBI surveillance order authorizing two agents—names redacted—to infiltrate the Colorado chapter of the "Three Percenters," the militia group which had acquired photographs of guillotines being erected at FEMA camps in 3 states. A week after Comey signed the order, 16 men, women, and children were incinerated or blown to bits in a bomb blast that cratered a densely wooded area in northwest Colorado. Moreover, an after-action document acknowledged the "valiant heroism" of an agent who died in the inferno "to protect and preserve national security." He was posthumously awarded the FBI Medal for Meritorious achievement.

"When shown the evidence, Comey denied Obama's involvement. He said he'd taken instruction from Susan Rice, Samantha Power, and Eric Holder, and he insisted Obama never gave him instructions directly," our source said.

But military investigators said Comey's statements were disingenuous. They told Comey he'd likely receive capital punishment unless he "came clean" and admitted that Obama had mandated the deaths of the Coloradons and countless other patriots during his time as president.

"I guess you want to go the way of Hillary Clinton," military investigators reportedly told Comey.

"Oh, God, please don't kill me. I've said everything I know," Comey replied.

In closing, our source said Comey will face a military tribunal; however, the U.S. Navy Judge Advocate General's Corps will not schedule his trial until after it has extracted all sensitive info from Comey's addled mind.

Forced Injections

"What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" I Corinthians 6:19

By Riley J. Hood—Milwaukee County Constitution Party

I have been a CPOW supporter since 1992. I have met many an "anti-vaxxer." The reason for this is that we have a Platform Plank on Forced Vaccinations. We affirm, "The Constitution Party of Wisconsin stands opposed to government agencies and elected officials who attempt to usurp the authority of parents. The government shall not decide whether children are in need of certain medical procedures, including attempts to force vaccinations. Especially disturbing is the recent attempt by large pharmaceutical companies using coercion and offering monetary or political support to elected officials to enact mandates that their vaccines, such as the HPV vaccine, be administered to young children, while at the same time being relieved of any liability for severe reactions from the toxins they inject into these innocent victims."

I used to think many anti-vaccine people were promoting bad optics, namely, almost to a person they were fond of dystopian fiction such as Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World" and Eric Blair's (aka George Orwell) 1984. They tended to be libertarians, and some their assertions were unproven. I supported our Platform because of its emphasis on parental authority.

These days, I think the anti-vaxxer paranoia was justified. After all, Event 201 sounds an awful lot like Room 101. Socialists themselves have made this level of idiocy a reality. "Where are your papers?" That sounds like something from a B WWII movie. The fact is, if ten years ago you started talking about a "vaccine passport," I would have asked, "where is your data?" I would have thought of you as chicken little chirping, "the sky is falling."

The Covid-19 shot is not an injection that works on the vaccination principle. The scientific principle of the vaccine is to give a person a small, or mild amount of a disease, so the person will develop his own immunity, thus inoculating him or her against the greater disease. You do not need an injection needle to do it. During the founding era, for instance in 1798, cowpox was used to inoculate against small pox, and doctors cut their patients with a curette to administer the vaccine. The word vaccine becoming synonymous with an injection is due to time and human stupidity.

The Covid-19 shots are called vaccines, but that is where it ends. They are mRNA gene "therapy." If these shots are effective, masks should be obsolete, but we are being propagandized to be good comrades and still mask up, even though the wonder drug is here. All to combat a disease that while it is infectious, is over 99% non-lethal. Masks also cover smiles, and we all know how infectious they are.

The Milwaukee County Constitution Party affirms our Platform plank with vigor and enthusiasm. We do so, on the basis that your body is supposed to be the temple of the Holy Spirit. The clause, "ye are not your own" means you answer to God, as opposed to being property of the state. On that basis you exercise good stewardship regarding your health. You don't do drugs, or get drunk, fornicate or anything that is physically self-destructive. On that basis, no government entity has any right to put anything into your body against your will. Not an RFID chip, or gene therapy, or even a legitimate vaccine that has a historical record of being a boon to mankind. We further affirm that when the state uses carrot and stick measures to enforce mandatory vaccines, that is Communism. When they induce with bribes, or coerce corporations by regulation to do their dirty work, that is Fascism. We also assert that Churches who use the word "love" to disobey the Bible should realize that God's Word tells you what love is, and you have no right to let an apostate society define the term for you.

energy and the fun out of life as it desparately attempts to destroy anything that might offend or provoke.

Rock legend Roger Daltrey clearly recognises this. Last week he launched a much-needed attack on the 'woke generation' in an interview on The Zane Lowe Show.

'It's becoming so absurd now with… the woke generation. It's terrifying, the miserable world they're going to create for themselves. I mean, anyone who's lived a life and you see what they're doing, you just know that it's a route to nowhere. Especially when you've lived through the periods of a life that we've had the privilege to. We've had the golden era. There's no doubt about that.'

Yahoo News has more:

Roger Daltrey: 'Woke generation' is creating a 'miserable world'

The Who star Roger Daltrey has taken aim at the "woke generation", saying a "miserable world" is going to be created.

Talking about today's society in an interview on Zane Lowe's Apple Music 1, Daltrey said he feels privileged to have lived in the "golden era".

The 77-year-old shared his thoughts as he was discussing all the "spin" in the world.

"It's just getting harder to disseminate the truth," he said. "It's almost like, now we should turn the whole thing off. Go back to newsprint, go back to word of mouth and start to read books again."…

"It's terrifying, the miserable world they're going to create for themselves.

"I mean, anyone who's lived a life and you see what they are doing, you just know that it's a route to nowhere.

The left is alienating a lot of people who used to be allies.

Their world view is too totalitarian.

As Daltrey sings in The Who's hit song, we won't get fooled again.

New England Journal of Medicine Pushes Discrimination in Medicine

By Wesley J. Smith, April 17, 2021

Wokeism has swept through the institutions, and certainly establishment medicine, particularly the New England Journal of Medicine (as I have illustrated here several times). In this week's example, an article in the "Perspective" section — which almost always reflects the journal's editorial stance — pushes discrimination in medicine.

First, it inaccurately describes critical-race-theory training — which former President Trump's now defunct executive order forbade in federal agencies — as mere "diversity" education. From, "Advancing President Biden's Equity Agenda — Lessons From Disparities Work," by Columbia University Assistant Professor of Clinical Psychiatry, Neil K. Aggarwal:

The new executive order revokes former President Donald Trump's September 2020 executive order regarding diversity training. That policy prevented federal agencies and their contractors from holding diversity-and-inclusion training programs based on concepts that the Trump administration considered to represent race-based "stereotyping" or "scapegoating," such as White privilege and systemic racism.

That description should not have passed rudimentary fact checking. Critical race theory is the opposite of embracing diversity and inclusion. As Christopher Rufo described in the New York Post, it promotes anti-white loathing:

According to a trove of whistleblower documents I've reviewed, the training begins with the premise that "virtually all white people contribute to racism" and hold narratives that "don't support the dismantling of racist institutions." Therefore, the trainers argue, white federal employees must "struggle to own their racism" and "invest in race-based growth."

The trainers then ask "white managers" to create "safe spaces," where black employees can explain "what it means to be black" and to be "seen in their pain." White staffers are instructed to keep silent and to "sit in the discomfort" of their racism. If any conflicts arise, the trainers ?insist that whites "don't get to decide when someone is being too emotional, too rash [or] too mean." Whites are told they can't protest if a person of color "responds to their oppression in a way [they] don't like."

I am not the first to note that critical-race theory is more akin to the Chinese Cultural Revolution indoctrination than it is to appropriate diversity training.

Next, Aggarwal advocates for blatant discrimination in healthcare (my emphasis):

Biden's executive order puts forth a definition of equity that could be seen as somewhat self-contradictory. According to the order, equity refers to "the consistent and systematic fair, just, and impartial treatment of all individuals, including individuals who belong to underserved communities that have been denied such treatment, such as Black, Latino, and Indigenous and Native American persons, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders and other persons of color; members of religious minorities; lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ+) persons; persons with disabilities; persons who live in rural areas; and persons otherwise adversely affected by persistent poverty or inequality."

The first part of this definition emphasizes equality for all people, whereas the second part calls attention to specific underserved groups.

Those concepts are not — or, at least should not be — in conflict. But that is precisely where Aggarwal goes:

To promote equity, the Biden administration should distribute resources differentially in order to benefit groups that are persistently disadvantaged.

That would be to pit some of us against others of us, which is no way to run a health-care system.

The rest of the column is filled with calls for continual data collection on every conceivable racial, ethnic, sex, and gender "variable" among patients–no binary allowed!–and almost impenetrable Progressive jargon. For example:

Conducting multivariate analyses that include race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, and income — and examining interactions among these variables — could capture lived experiences more accurately than univariate analyses. Black homosexual people face different barriers to health care than Black heterosexual people, for example, and equity assessments should explore barriers based on intersectionality, not just single identity variables.

This obsession with differences — ever more thinly sliced — isn't healthy. People are people, and should be treated equally as such. No "favored" and "disfavored" allowed.

Establishment medicine can't have it both ways. It can't decry the ongoing loss of trust in organized medicine on one hand, and then explicitly promote discrimination against huge swaths of patients on the other. Unjust treatment of some cannot be cured by inflicting injustice on others. That is a prescription for tearing the country apart.

Are We Indigenes Yet?

By Viv Forbes

The UK has seen many waves of invaders and colonisers – Neanderthals, Celts, Romans, Angles, Saxons, Jutes, Danes, Norsemen, Normans and more recently Indians and Pakistanis. Only Irish, Welsh and Scottish inhabitants have had the strength to get special recognition today.

No human race evolved in Australia - several races walked, paddled, sailed or flew here over the past 60,000 years. Some displaced earlier arrivals, others mixed with locals. Some left rock art distinctly different from that of later arrivals and some destroyed or hid evidence of earlier tribes. Some were cannibals, some brought domesticated animals with them and all hunted native animals, sometimes to extinction. None can claim moral superiority.

Visiting fishermen from Asia and exploring mariners from Europe added to the gene pool in this vast land. Negroid tribes were isolated in Tasmania when rising seas formed Bass Strait and others found refuge in the rainforests of North Queensland. Now a few modern survivors of a few of these many tribes are seeking special constitutional recognition as "indigenes" and a "voice" to Australian Parliaments.

Europeans started settling in Australia over 300 years ago. They sailed here.

In my own family, my father's Watt family came from UK and my mother's Petersen family came from Denmark. Both families arrived in 1860's and settled in the Warwick/Killarney area in Queensland. Have we become indigenes yet?

And my wife's ancestors, the Bells and the Athertons settled in Queensland in the 1860's.

Martha Bell (wife of John Bell) arrived from England in 1860 and settled at Guyra near Armidale.

Here is an 1860 photograph of Australian pioneer Mother, Martha Bell. Please feel free to download and publish it.

https://saltbushclub.com/wp-content/uploads/2021/05/bell/Martha-Bell-image-save.jpg

Shortly afterwards the Bells trekked to North Queensland with their cousins the Athertons.

The Bells were the first settlers at Bell's Creek in the Sarina District, and the Athertons, pioneered European settlement on the Atherton Tableland.

Are they indigenes yet? And when can their horses, sheep and cattle join dingos (brought here by aboriginals) as "indigenous species", welcome in National Parks?

Do we children of pioneers get a special "voice" in Parliament. If not yet, when?

There were hundreds of Aboriginal tribes, languages and dialects. Which one becomes "the voice". Like Australia's black colonisers, Pommies, Cousin Jacks, Paddies, Chinks, Ities, Dagos, Huns, Danes, Viets and the recent multicultural mobs are now all dinkum Aussies and should be treated equally in Parliament and before the law.

All Australians should have the same voting, welfare and property rights. If our black indigenes were given individual freehold property rights to the vast lands set aside for them, they would not need welfare. Getting the Voice will just enrich the lucky few who get to conduct this black choir.

WILL
WISCONSIN INSTITUTE FOR LAW & LIBERTY

WILL Urges Madison Superintendent to Address Racially Segregated School Discussions

Madison West High School, again, divides virtual family conversations by race

The News: The Wisconsin Institute for Law & Liberty (WILL) issued a letter, Monday, to Madison Metropolitan School District (MMSD) Superintendent, Dr. Carlton Jenkins, urging the school district to address the racial segregation employed at Madison West High School for Zoom conversations on current events. This is the second occasion in the last year where WILL has warned MMSD that racial segregation in education is illegal under federal law.

The Quote: WILL Deputy Counsel, Dan Lennington, said, "Racial segregation is never beneficial or benign. It is our hope that the leadership at MMSD take this opportunity to commit the school district to the principle of equality and end all racial segregation immediately."

Background: Recently, an email originating from the Madison Metropolitan School District (MMSD) invited families of Madison West High School to a conversation related to "all the police brutality and violence that is going on." After asserting that it is "very necessary to have space for our families to discuss and process," the email provides two different Zoom links: one for Parents of Color and another for White Parents.

These racially segregated discussion groups are plainly unconstitutional. In 1954, in Brown v. Board of Education, the Supreme Court famously decided "that in the field of public education the doctrine of 'separate but equal' has no place." Courts have re-affirmed this principle over and over, yet MMSD's policy flies in the face of that settled doctrine and the basic constitutional command that governments, including school districts, must not discriminate based on race.

In July 2020, WILL issued a letter to Madison West High School administrators when the school hosted a similar racially segregated virtual conversation.

Hunter Biden Reports

his handlers have anything to say about it.

Remember that Trump 'Russian Collusion' canard?

And weren't we supposed to learn what evidence the Durham special council turned up on this before the 2020 election?

Also recall that the hoax that Donald Trump was Vladimir Putin's puppet is now known to have been fabricated by the Obama-Biden administration and rogue top-level intelligence officials in cooperation with operatives tied to the Clinton campaign and DNC to distract attention away from Hillary's 30,000 deleted emails. Included were some exchanges containing highly classified information.

Let's also be reminded again that the costly 22-month-long Mueller investigation found no evidence either of Trump Russian collusion or obstruction of justice.

There is evidence, however, that the Obama-Biden White House authorized a 2016 FBI "Crossfire Hurricane" investigation premised upon a phony "dirty dossier" report sponsored and funded by the Hillary Clinton campaign through which the DOJ and FBI obtained FISA court warrants falsely alleging evidence to the contrary.

January 7, 2017 Oval Office discussions among then-President Obama, Vice President Biden, Deputy Attorney General Sally Yates, National Security Adviser Susan Rice and FBI Director James Comey reportedly addressed how to continue the FBI's Crossfire Hurricane investigation going forward.

Biden is noted having suggested justifying investigations of incoming Trump Security Adviser Lt. General Michael Flynn based upon an obscure 1799 "Logan Act."

In their FISA filings, the agencies omitted known facts that the dossier information used in 2017 to conduct surveillance on Carter Page — a relatively inconsequential Trump administration adviser — was not only uncorroborated, but also knowingly involved a false statement.

Kevin Clinesmith, a low-level FBI lawyer, copped a guilty plea of altering evidence in exchange for skating on serious federal prison time.

In May 2019, Attorney General William Barr tapped Connecticut's U.S. Attorney John Durham to look into issues related to the origins of the FBI's 2016 Trump-Russia investigation.

It was broadly expected that an interim report, including alleged Obama-Biden administration influence, would be publicly released prior to the 2020 election.

Those long-awaited conclusions were reportedly disrupted by the intervention of new evidentiary discoveries and COVID-19 related investigatory delays.

In December 2020, AG Barr granted special council status to Durham under a presumption that this would provide him some protection from interference in continuing the politically explosive probe after then-President-elect Biden took office in January.

We might safely bet that Biden's AG, Merrick Garland, will be under pressure to shut down Durham before he can issue an embarrassing report or criminal indictments.

In any case, we can also count on the mainstream media to ignore any bad news for Democrats — just as they steadfastly refused to cover a blockbuster October 14 New York Post feature. The posting described details regarding how the Biden family made a lucrative business out of peddling Joe's high-level government influence to Chinese oligarchs and other foreign adversaries.

Evil demons lurking in Hunter's laptop from hell.

As I previously reported, we now know that since late 2019, the FBI has been in possession of information obtained on a laptop that Joe's son Hunter had delivered to a computer repair shop about Ukraine, China and Russia Biden family payback schemes allegedly trading on Joe's government influence. Those revelations far eclipsed any corruption President Trump was falsely impeached (and acquitted) for.

The long and short of it, is that the nation endured a painful charade ordeal resulting from Trump's 2019 telephone conversation with Ukraine's president that involved a legitimate national security extortion risk posed by Biden family foreign influence peddling during a time when V.P. Joe was Obama's lead U.S. Ukraine and China representative.

The central issue involved Biden's public braggadocio about withholding a billion U.S. taxpayer bucks unless he fired the prosecutor who was investigating Burisma, a corrupt energy company that was paying son Hunter $50,000 monthly as a no-show board member.

Information on Hunter's laptop corroborated findings of a year-long GOP-led Senate Homeland and Government Affairs and Senate Finance Committee investigation into expansive Biden family global enterprises.

In addition to over $4 million paid by Burisma to Hunter and his business partner, Devon Archer, for board membership, Hunter and his family also received millions of dollars from other foreign nationals with questionable backgrounds.

The New York Post reported that in December 2013, when Hunter was "still at the helm" of Rosemont Seneca Partners, a private equity firm he founded with former Secretary of State John Kerry's stepson Christopher Heinz, Hunter accompanied his father on an official visit to China aboard Air Force Two. While there, the vice president also reportedly met with his son's Chinese partners.

Ten days following the trip, Hunter's company inked a deal with the state-owned Bank of China which created a $1.5 billion investment fund called Bohai Harvest RST (BHR).

Such a report flies in the face of repeated claims by Joe Biden that he knew nothing of Hunter's foreign business dealings because he "trusted his son."

Other curious Biden family foreign business involved a $3.5 million wire transfer to a Hunter-connect firm from the widow of a former Moscow mayor, and a $100,000 global spending spree with Joe's brother James and sister Sara funded by business associations linked to the Chinese Communist government and the People's Liberation Army.

The Senate committee also reported that Hunter paid nonresident women who were apparently linked to an "Eastern European prostitution or human trafficking ring."

Hunter has since confirmed that he is also currently under federal DOJ investigations for possible money laundering and tax evasion.

All optics be damned, those Hunter investigations will be conducted by DOJ's criminal division now headed by Nicholas McQuaid, a former colleague of attorney Christopher Clark who is reportedly representing Hunter in those same probes.

creating wealth over time and generations, which has come from America's greatest gift to the world (also known as capitalism), and 5) imposing socialism propaganda, now through Big Tech outlets such as Facebook and Twitter, school books and teachers, government agencies, and then censoring any opposing views. This last point had a dramatic impact on our election system in 2020.

Good people have been murdered through this recent socialist outburst and protests conveniently coordinated with a pandemic and a major election. Public and private property across the USA has been destroyed through their Marxist violent antics. They have infiltrated all aspects of our culture within local, state and federal governments and now even have corporate USA as contributors to not only their pocketbooks but as well to their ideology. They have been in the process of re-writing history books and lessons to indoctrinate our children and grandchildren into their socialistic (…communist) ideals. It is time to cut any empathetic ties to their mantra of combat fronts including, race, climate change, defunding police, packing the courts, immigration, and human sexuality.

All great countries have succumbed to internal (socialism) or external (foreign communists) pressures and erosion over time. Our country was founded by some of the bravest and brightest patriots of all time. Let us not destroy their work through organizations of hate, violence and murder. Let us stand up and take our country back. It starts in the next election in 2022, just a short time away. It will take each one of us to let our individual wills be heard through phone calls, emails, texts to put pressure on our elected officials to change the election system to make sure our voices and our votes are counted.

There's a parody of language in this world. Leftist organizations use the word equity, but it's true meaning becomes iniquity. States propose new taxes and call them fair, but it's just the opposite. Widespread election fraud occurs in 2020, and then the Left immediately proposes a new bill they name The For the People Act, which is full of more holes that would allow rampant fraud to continue within our election system. The President signs the American Rescue Plan and doles out more tax money that can be considered a bribe to "vaccinate America". These are marketing schemes and simple lies to spread deceit across an entire populace. Let us start the We the People movement instead to reform the election system and bring back our democracy.

People we've long trusted are spreading lies and falsifying scientific and statistical data to support their political agendas regarding such things as climate change and the COVID pandemic. These lies and misinformation are impacting millions and trillions of people across the world. But when confronted and their data disputed, they and the mainstream and social medias silence, censor, cancel, discredit and squelch opposing views because of their own political and socioeconomic views.

Where are they for people and families like retired policeman David Dorn? This individual murdered in the midst of a so-called peaceful protest was a prime example of iniquity in our nation. Some people would call out these evil actions and people as hypocrites. There's one big problem with the information I just presented. You won't hear or read this on any mainstream TV or newspaper story. People need other sources of credible information. They must seek it out.

They (MSM, Big Tech and US government) don't want you to listen to or hear these thoughts. They are being paid to cover one message only, and other points of view are not welcome. When other points of view surface, they are censored by the mainstream and social media. They only want you to hear their message of equity which is really hidden in iniquity, that is wickedness, deceit and lies. Pass the information in this story and others onto family, friends and neighbors. Have a conversation with your children and family members. Become aware of what's happening in your local government agencies and educational institutions.

All men and women, especially in the USA, are created equal. All Americans have ample opportunities to improve their lives and those around them in one lifetime. But…will all men use their God given talents equally to the best of their abilities? The answer is no. This is the true meaning of equity. It comes from each individual, their energy, their work ethic and will.

Therefore… do not trust our government's long overreaching arm to fix problems. Let it come from our families, neighbors and communities. Do that is lawful and right, walk in the statues of life without committing iniquities so that you may live in peace and happiness. Allow every human to prove their own work, and have rejoicing in their good works and bear their own burdens for iniquity. Don't use liberty for an occasion to destroy, rob, steal and kill, but serve one another. Let our leaders, teachers and media communicate all good things. Humans that conduct themselves by corrupt dictates and desires should heed the watchman's warning to the wicked of their ways…or they will end up paying for their iniquities in this lifetime or the next. As we all have opportunity, let us do good unto all.

Upcoming Military Tribunals at GITMO

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, May 15, 2021

Real Raw News has obtained a list having the names of people who will face a military tribunal at the Guantanamo Bay detention center in the near future. Please understand this list is not etched in stone, and it does not include persons being tried elsewhere. It has been made known to be that the persons named below have been apprehended and are currently at or awaiting transportation to GITMO. The situation is fluid and subject to change, and tribunals may be held concurrently if JAG considers it necessary, based on personnel available to prosecute cases. I will supply detailed, comprehensive articles on the tribunals once they begin in earnest.

- John Brennan – May 24
- James Comey—May 31
- Huma Abedin—June 7
- William Jefferson Clinton—June 14
- John Boehner—June 17
- Actor Tom Hanks and wife Rita Wilson—June 21

I will share more info as it becomes available to me.

Day 3 Guilty!

dinner plate and make sure it was only Trump who got poisoned food. Since we were not expecting to hear back until the job was completed or network news announced Trump was dead, I didn't check the email address he responded to until after the dinner was scheduled. If I'd checked earlier, I would've told him to find a different way to kill Trump, because we know, of course, that a food tester accompanies him on most domestic and all trips abroad. I learned shortly thereafter that someone besides Trump had eaten food from his plate and died. The administration covered it up because there isn't supposed to be public knowledge that a president employs a food tester, and his administration was afraid public dissemination would damage public opinion of the Secret Service. That's what I learned. And I can only assume they asked the Vatican to keep it under wraps."

"The defendant was a pitiful schemer," Rear Adm. Crandall said, addressing the panel. "It seems that when Clinton tasked you with planning these crimes, things always went awry. Your involvement is indisputable. Regardless the statements and emails, out of his own mouth he admitted to these crimes at Clinton's trial. This commission could spend weeks or even months highlighting his expansive criminal career, but we have others to bring to justice."

A tearful and sullen Podesta slouched in his chair. Beside him, his counsel, Trisha Anderson, stared at the screen of her MacBook and rapped at the keys. She slowly rose to her feet and with an acrimonious smirk on her face, asked to make a statement.

"I remind the commission that my client's admissions of guilt were based on a good faith agreement. JAG has pulled a bait-and-switch on Mr. Podesta. Had he known he might receive capital punishment, he would not have cooperated. The U.S. military is subverting justice, and Mr. Podesta, by no means a picture-perfect man—who among us is?—is being railroaded. I ask that you ladies, you officers, consider JAG's behavior before deciding Mr. Podesta's outcome," Trisha Anderson said.

Rear Adm. Crandall gave a brief review of the charges and reminded the panel that a military commission, unlike a civilian court, needed only a majority vote to convict. He also said the tribunal, again unlike a civilian trial, does not have a separate penalty phase and that judgment be rendered once a determination of guilt is reached. Without a moment's hesitation, the panel announced it had reached a verdict, finding Podesta guilty on all charges. It recommended Podesta receive capital punishment for his grievous crimes.

"Ms. Anderson, does your client understand the verdict, and does he have a preference as to how this sentence will be carried out?" Rear Adm. Crandall asked.

Podesta broke down in tears, his shoulders heaving fitfully.

"You're murdering him, you decide," Trisha Anderson said.

"Very well. This commission decrees John Podesta will face capital punishment by firing squad, the act to be carried out on 1 June. This session of the military commission on tribunals is concluded," Rear Adm. Crandall said.

As Podesta was helped to his feet and escorted from the tribunal chamber, his counsel said she would appeal the decision to anyone and everyone willing to listen.

Dr. Fauci Prepping to Flee Country

By Michael Baxter, Real Raw News, May 15, 2021

Donald J. Trump and the U.S. military have expressed unease over Dr. Anthony Fauci's recent real estate acquisitions in the United Kingdom, Argentina, and Panama, heightening concerns that the Deep State doctor might flee the country ahead of being served an arrest warrant for crimes committed against America and its people.

As reported previously, Fauci, certainly no pauper, has netted at least $9,000,000 from Covid-19 vaccination sales, and a substantial part of that illicitly earned income went toward the purchase of overseas properties. All three were purchased in his wife's name—Christine Grady—via Sotheby's International Realty Agency, which brokers transcontinental deals for the rich and powerful. Curiously, all three partnerships." Now that sounded like their kind of program.

Government, they said, would finally tap the tremendous power of the entrepreneurial process and the force of the free market into making government more effective and efficient. It sounded so revolutionary and so American.

Being open-minded and wanting to help us get back to what the framers of the Constitution had built for us, we wanted this to be true. But as Tom pointed out:

Today that "reinvention" has revealed itself to be the policy known as Sustainable Development, which is nothing more than a plan for a top-down managed society. Sustainable Development policy includes population control; development control; technology control; resource control; and in a great sense, thought control.

Sustainable Development is not freedom. Not one of the three principles apply. There is no individuality as it advocates group policies; there is no private property under Sustainable Development – period. And there is no free enterprise as markets and supplies are tightly controlled by the hand of government.

Yet, incredibly, much of the Sustainable policy has been embraced by the "free-trade" movement, which advocates open borders, free trade zones, and one-size fits all regulations, currencies, and the use of public/private partnerships. And many of the biggest proponents of the policy are conservative and libertarian think tanks.

parcels were bought in the first quarter of 2021, after news of his indictment began circulating among alternative news outlets.

Sources involved in Trump's efforts to bring the Deep Sate to justice told Real Raw News that the military has delayed arresting Fauci due to his current degree of public exposure, appearing almost hourly on syndicated MSM broadcasts. Like many of his Plandemic co-conspirators, Fauci gives interviews virtually from home, in what appears to be the home office inside his northwest D.C. townhouse. However, Fauci's official residence "went dark" in early February, according to military sources who had the residence under constant surveillance.

"The Deep State has obviously set the bastard up with dens made to look like his home where he broadcasts from. Only one reason to do this. Because he knows his time is short. When he's in public, which rarely happens, he's always encircled by an entourage of Fauci fans. The people who fawn over him like he's Jesus Christ," our source said.

Asked whether the military is considering grabbing Fauci sooner than later, our source said the following: "All I can say is the military is making careful considerations now that it knows Fauci has property in other countries."

The military, he added, perceives the purchases as a harbinger of Fauci's desire to escape a military tribunal. The charges against the Deep State doctor are certainly damning–mass medical malpractice resulting in the needless deaths of 500,000 Americans. Not to mention treason and aiding and abetting the CCP.

"Fauci thinks he's untouchable. He's not. If his family, and that means his daughters, too, are complicit, then they'll face justice. The military knows Fauci had a hand in financing the lab from which the virus was let loose. His days are numbered, mark my words," our source said.

Even if Fauci successfully absconds to a foreign country, Donald J. Trump and the military will retrieve him, regardless of valid extradition treaties, our source added.

One Nation Under God

Joel Beeke on the Pre-Born

"The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life"-Job 33:4

By Riley J. Hood—Milwaukee County Constitution Party

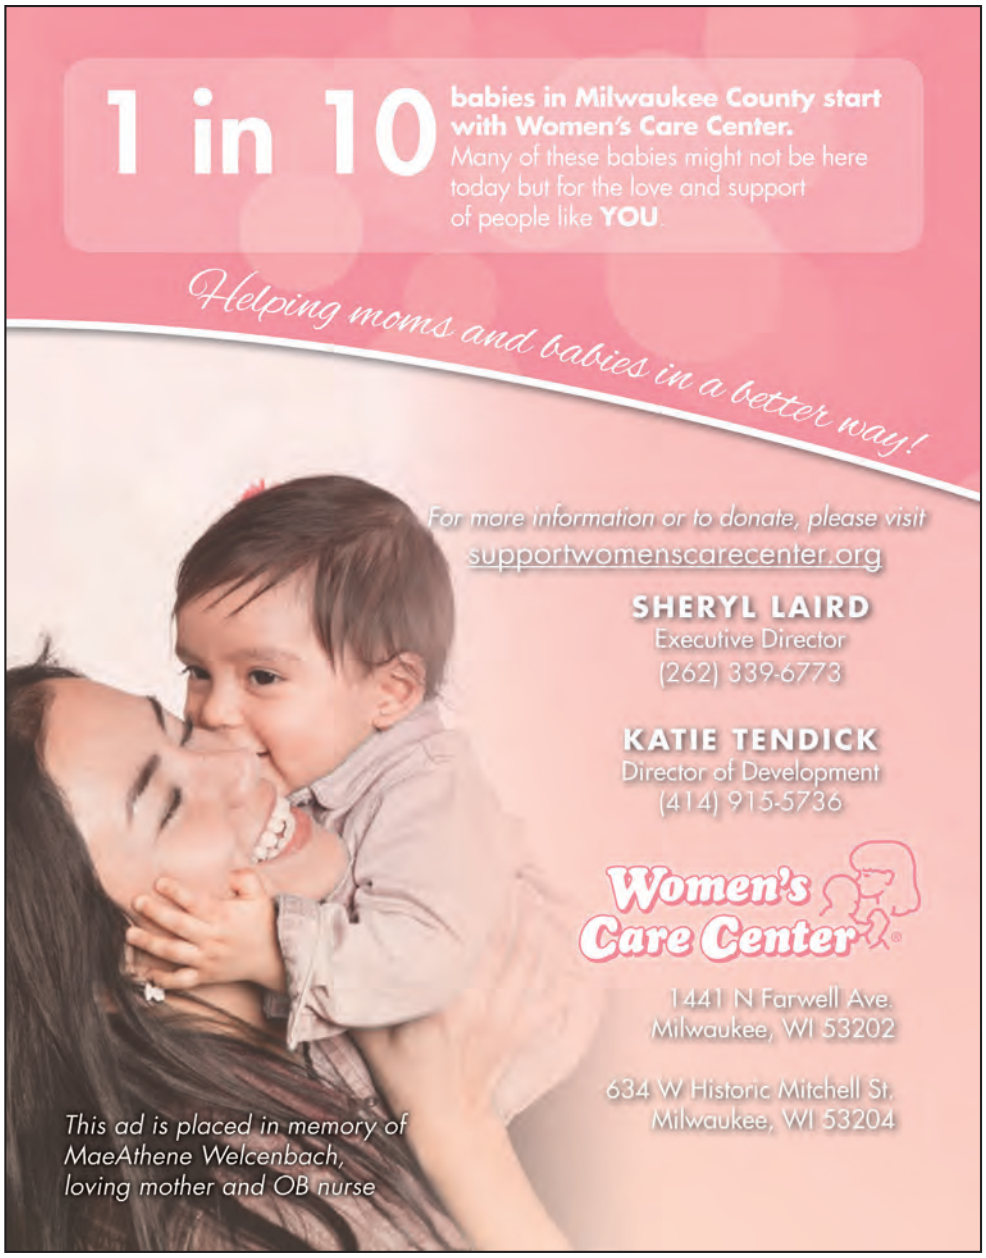
Joel R. Beeke is the Pastor of Heritage Reformed Congregation in Grand Rapids, MI; and the President of Puritan Reformed Theological Seminary, where he is a professor of systematic theology and homiletics. He and his wife Mary have three children and four grandchildren.

Beeke confronts post-modernism with science, "When scientists speak of a human embryo or fetus, they are not putting it in the category of another species, but are simply using technical terminology for a stage of development, like the words infant, child, adolescent, and adult. A human fetus is a young human person in the womb." He adds, "From conception, the child has its own genetic code that clearly identifies it as part of the human race. The child's DNA also has a distinct code from the mother, showing that he or she is not a part of her body, but a distinct individual living temporarily within her." Ultrasound imaging shows, "The child is not a blob of tissue, but a highly complex, though tiny, baby. At three weeks after conception, a baby's heart begins beating." "At six weeks, a baby's brain waves are traceable. Virtually all surgical abortions silence a beating heart and a functioning brain." Beeke affirms, "By any reasonable standard, a human fetus is a young human being."

Beeke confronts arguments based on maternal dependency, "Arguments for abortion based on dependence tread on dangerous ground." "The location and situation of a human being does not make him or her any less human." Beeke confronts family planning, "Consider the following historical case: The father has syphilis, the mother has tuberculosis. They have already had four children, the first is blind, the second died, the third is deaf and dumb, and the fourth has tuberculosis. The mother is pregnant with her fifth child." If you abort the last child, "then you just killed Ludwig von Beethoven."

Beeke declared, "It is not right to 'play God' with other people's lives." Regarding abortion, he writes, "To kill an innocent baby is murder. That is why the products of abortion are so ugly: severed hands, feet, and heads, wrapped up in bags and discarded. On an intuitive level, we know this."

Beeke declares, "God reveals the human personhood of the unborn child. God personally forms each child in the womb. Job said, 'The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life' (Job 33:4)." He further said, "Unborn children are precious human beings and must be protected," and "Abortion is an attack upon a human person with the intent to kill. It is premeditated murder. God declares His judgment against the killers of the unborn. The Lord has a special compassion for the weak when they are oppressed by those more powerful than they are," "No one is more vulnerable than an unborn child is." The Milwaukee County Constitution Party asserts that abortion is a curse on our America. We assert that if you abort a preborn baby, you have murdered a weaker person, and that all you have done. We are asking you to petition Tony Evers to intercede on behalf of the Preborn. Sign the Preborn Can't Wait 2021 Petition.



AOC says Planned Parenthood promotes births, saves lives

Fox News, May 6, 2021

Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez made an impassioned case arguing those who truly value life must support Planned Parenthood, noting "how many babies have been born" because of prenatal services offered by the organization.

The New York Democrat also said that she was a "Planned Parenthood" baby, as her mother relied on prenatal services offered by Planned Parenthood before her birth.

"If we want to talk about Planned Parenthood let's talk about how many lives Planned Parenthood has saved. And how many babies have been born because of the prenatal care provided by Planned Parenthood," Ocasio-Cortez said.

Planned Parenthood's annual 2019-2020 report said it provided 354,871 abortion services and 8,626 prenatal services.

Joe Biden Will Make Americans Fund Research Using Body Parts From Aborted Babies

Life News, April 16, 2021

In a new announcement from his administration today, Joe Biden will make Americans fund research using body parts from aborted babies with their taxpayer dollars.

The Biden administration announced it is overturning a pro-life rule President Donald trump put in place barring taxpayer funding for federally-funded studies involving the use of fetal tissue taken from babies killed in abortions.

During his administration President Trump put in place a new bioethics advisory board recommending that the government reject funding for 13 of 14 research projects that plan to use aborted baby body parts. Trump appointed a number of leading pro-life researchers and bioethicists to the board.

But today the National Institutes of Health (NIH) officially rescinded the ban on using aborted baby parts in research.

Argentinian pro-abortion leader dies during abortion procedure

Voices for Life, April 16, 2021

Spanish language media reported last Sunday that radical pro-abortion supporter Maria de Valle Gonzalez Lopez died during what she labeled her "dream" abortion operation. She was 23 years old and was the leader of the Radical Youth in the La Paz municipality in the province of Mendoza. Her death has sparked a fierce debate about abortion in Argentina and led for calls for women to know that the procedure can sometimes carry serious risks.

On April 11, the woman underwent a legal abortion procedure in a local hospital. The operation turned out to be fatal for her. This fact came as a shock to the public as this was the first recorded death following the approval of the country's controversial pro-abortion bill passed on December 30, 2020, which legalized abortion in some cases. Previously, abortion was illegal in the predominately Catholic country.

Dr. Luis Durand, an Argentinian surgeon, told ACI Prensa journalists that "while some believe that the death of the young woman could've occurred due to some misconduct, in reality abortion is not a medical practice. Just a few months ago, it was a crime under Argentinian law. In the case of abortion, the death of the child is always brutal. It is burned through injecting substances into the uterus, or it is removed through dismemberment, or it is subjected to extreme uterus spasms which asphyxiate it."

VOICE OF JERUSALEM

A Powder Keg, Courtesy of Washington

By Caroline Glick

Since the Democrats took control of the White House and both Houses of Congress a hundred days ago, the Middle East has become a powder keg. But Israel's ruling class sees nothing.

In Afghanistan and Iraq, violent attacks against U.S. forces are rising steeply. From January through April, attacks on U.S. forces increased 40%. President Joe Biden's announcement that the U.S. will withdraw its forces from the country by September 11, the 20th anniversary of the jihadist attacks on the U.S. worsened the situation by communicating a message of profound American weakness and defeatism. The Taliban, al Qaeda and Iran clearly believe they are now free to humiliate and bleed the U.S. as they take control of the country.

In Iraq, Iranian-controlled Shiite militias launched three missile strikes against U.S. bases in the past week. Hoping to avoid confrontation with Iran as its emissaries appease it in Vienna, the Biden administration is assiduously avoiding acknowledging that Iran is behind the attacks, and so it guarantees that more attack will soon follow. As in Afghanistan, Iran reads U.S. behavior as an invitation to strike with immunity.

In Syria, Iran's Syrian proxy President Bashar Assad and Iran's Lebanese proxy Hezbollah continue to wage a war of extermination against Syrians who oppose them. In southern Syria last weekend, after opposition forces from the village of Am Batana, six kilometers from the border with Israel attacked a joint Syrian military and Hezbollah base nearby, the military ordered the entire village to evacuate by 2 pm last Saturday, or else. Most of the villagers reportedly fled their homes.

While turning a blind eye to Syria, the Biden administration continues to empower the Lebanese armed forces and government – both wholly controlled by Iran through Hezbollah. Last month, the administration transferred armored trucks valued at $14 million to the Hezbollah-controlled Lebanese military and asked that Congress provide financial assistance to the government. Hezbollah for its part has launched a charm campaign on the public. Having caused the government to go bankrupt and forced the people of a once prosperous land into destitution, Hezbollah is now carrying out a well-publicized food drive, handing out Iranian basic foodstuffs to starving Lebanese along with Hezbollah membership cards.

Just months ago, hope abounded that Saudi Arabia would join the UAE, Bahrain, Morocco and Sudan in the Abraham peace accords with Israel. But the picture is now reversed. Recognizing the U.S. has changed sides, the Saudis no longer believe that with Israel they can contain Iran. So now they are hoping to cut a deal with the ayatollahs.

Ties between Israel and the UAE are also showing signs of stress. Last week, the UAE joined the anti-Israel cavalcade, releasing a statement condemning Israel for quelling Arab violence against Jews in Jerusalem. And this week reports emerged that Iranian Foreign Minister Mohamed Javad Zarif paid a visit to the Emirates.

In Vienna Iran's Deputy Foreign Minister Abbas Arachi told journalists that the U.S. team has agreed to remove economic sanctions from Iranian oil sales, banks, maritime shipping, firms and officials. Arachi said that the U.S. has agreed to release $7 billion in frozen funds and Britain has agreed to release an additional $400 million pounds in return for four American and one British hostage being held in Iran. The U.S. also agreed to release four Iranians being held in U.S. prisons. After days of vague denials, the State Department confirmed major sanctions relief is on the table.

While the Biden administration has yet to focus on the Palestinians, its statements and appointments have empowered Fatah and Hamas to launch a new campaign against Israel.

Following Palestinian Authority and Fatah Chairman Mahmoud Abbas's cancellation of the Palestinian elections, Fatah returned to killing Jews. For the first time in years, Fatah's Nablus office took credit for Monday's terror attack in northern Samaria where one seminary student was murdered and two more were critically wounded in a drive by shooting as they stood at a bus stop.

Ahead of Israel's Jerusalem Day next week, Iran's Jerusalem Day this week and the end of Ramadan, both Hamas and Fatah are focused on Israel's capital. Although the focal point of Arab violence was initially the Damascus Gate to the Old City, where Arab gangs beat Jews in the street, it has now moved to Sheikh Jarrah neighborhood in north-east Jerusalem.

After decades of court battles, and countless court orders requiring Arab squatters to be removed from the Jewish owned homes in Sheikh Jarrah, the Supreme Court is set to end the legal saga with a final verdict May 10. Hamas leaders Khaled Mashal and Ismail Haniyeh announced this week that May 9 will be "a turning point for the war against the occupation and the settlers."

Hamas's terror kingpin Muhamed Deif joined the threatening chorus as well. In his first statement since 2014 Deif threatened, that if Israel evicts the squatters, "The move will not go unanswered and the occupation will pay a heavy price."

Thursday night the riots in Sheikh Jarrah began in earnest with Arab mobs setting fire outside Jewish homes and assaulting Jewish residents of the neighborhood. Earlier in the week, the Palestinians launched their political warfare campaign to demonize Israel.

As the excellent Telegram page, "Abu Ali Express" which tracks events in the Arab world reported, the Palestinians put English subtitles on a video of Israeli police arresting an Arab suspect in Sheikh Jarrah. In it, the suspect says, "You are suffocating me," as the police restrain him on the ground and handcuff him.

The purpose of the video is obvious – the Palestinians seek to draw a direct line between the police killing of George Floyd in Minneapolis and Israeli law enforcement in Jerusalem. And it is working.

Thursday the EU and the governments of most major EU states along with the Biden State Department issued statements condemning Israel and insisting that Israel's control over its unified capital along with Judea and Samaria is "illegal." Whatever is coming next week will be the first expression of a coordinated Palestinian-Western assault against Israeli control over Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria since Biden entered office.

The Palestinians understand two key truths. First, the only unified foreign policy the EU has is delegitimization of Israel. And second, for the Biden administration and Democrats as a whole, there is no difference between foreign policy and domestic policy. The administration is supportive of Iran and the Palestinians because Biden and his advisors apply the same identity politics to their foreign policy as they do to their domestic policy.

Identity politics hold that the U.S. was born in sin and systemically racist. To cleanse its soul, America must adopt a two-tier system of governance in which members of recognized "victim" groups are given extraordinary rights and members of recognized "oppressor" groups must be punished. And just as America is morally infirm and must mend its evil ways, so its allies –particularly Israel – must be similarly punished and forced to transform itself.

Biden gave voice to this position in his speech before Congress this week. There he presented a portrait of the U.S. as an inherently racist state. This racism, he claimed was preserved and enforced by the law enforcement system which suffers from "systemic racism." Police reform laws that he and his fellow Democrats intend to promulgate, he said, will remedy the situation.

To understand what Biden was referring to we can look to New York State, where the Democrat-controlled government passed a bail reform law in 2019. The new law effectively gave tens of thousands of violent criminals a get-out-of-jail-free card by making it extremely difficult for judges to either remand criminal suspects to custody pending their trial or impose bail as a condition for pre-trial release. The consequence of the reform has been a massive increase in violent crimes statewide.

This week, and not for the first time, New York's Jews were victimized by their state's no-bail policy. For 11 days, a black assailant terrorized the Jewish community of Riverdale in the Bronx. Jordan Burnette vandalized four synagogues, some multiple times before police arrested him. After one judge imposed $20,000 bail on Burnette, the local prosecutor went to a more politically savvy judge who cancelled her colleague's ruling and set him free.

Thanks to Democrat control over the White House and both houses of Congress, soon the entire country will have the two-tiered justice system now in place in New York, where favored groups are protected and disfavored groups are left to fend for themselves.

The tyranny of the identity politics driven Democrats has brought about a level of social and political polarization in America unseen since the Civil War. It is not a stretch to say that today there are two Americas and two American peoples living side by side in hostility and fear. While it is impossible to foretell how things will develop, it is also impossible to believe that a positive or peaceful outcome to this explosive situation is likely.

This brings us to Israel. At this moment of profound and perilous uncertainty, Israel's ruling class – particularly in the media and the security establishment — is dangerously blind to what is happening. On Tuesday, Avi Benayahu, a former IDF Spokesman and a fixture in the media-security establishment gave voice to the ruling class's myopia in post on his Twitter account. Benayahu presented the current situation in the U.S. as utopian and gushed that Israel can enjoy the same lucky fate if Likud and the rightist bloc are replaced by what the left has euphemistically dubbed a "government of change." That is, a leftist government joined by anti-Semitic Arab parties and opportunistic formerly rightist parties.

Benayahu gushed, "You want to see what 'change' looks like? Look at the U.S. under Biden. Look and listen to the quiet, to the normalcy, to the sanity and tranquility that have fallen on America. There's no fake news, no racist statements, no attacks on the media and the judges and there's great attention being paid to domestic affairs. Biden is working for America's citizens. For everyone. That's what change looks like!"

Benayahu's position owes to two factors. First, like his fellow leftists, Benayahu shares the Democrats' progressive mindset. Second, Israel's ruling class gets its information on Israel's most important ally from media organs like the New York Times and CNN. Benayahu and his fellow elitists fail to recognize that these outlets have long abandoned their role as news organizations and have transformed themselves in to the propaganda arm of the Democrat Party.

The reality obscured by the Democrats' media echo chamber is that Biden's domestic policies have launched American society into a downward spiral driven by hatred and fear. His foreign politics have placed Israel in the eye of a storm of epic proportions.

With its members now grasping the reins of power, Israel's ruling class must face the truth of the situation.

This gene-therapy does not provide immunity and double-vaccinated can still catch and spread the virus.

Reduces deaths from the virus infection

This gene-therapy does not reduce deaths from the infection. Double-Vaccinated infected with Covid have also died.

Reduces circulation of the virus

This gene-therapy still permits the spread of the virus as it offers zero immunity to the virus.

Reduces transmission of the virus

This gene-therapy still permits the transmission of the virus as it offers zero immunity to the virus.

The following violations of the Nuremberg Code are as follows:

Nuremberg Code #1: Voluntary Consent is Essential

No person should be forced to take a medical experiment without informed consent. Many media, political and non-medical persons are telling people to take the shot. They offer no information as to the adverse effects or dangers of this gene-therapy. All you hear from them is – " safe and effective" and " benefits outweigh the risks." Countries are using lockdowns, duress and threats to force people to take this vaccine or be prohibited to participate in free society under the mandate of a Vaccine Passport or Green Pass. During the Nuremberg trials, even the media was prosecuted and members were put to death for lying to the public, along with many of the doctors and Nazis found guilty of Crimes Against Humanity.

Nuremberg Code #2: Yield Fruitful Results Unprocurable By Other Means

As listed above, the gene-therapy does not meet the criteria of a vaccine and does not offer immunity to the virus. There are other medical treatments that yield fruitful results against Covid such as Ivermectin, Vitamin D, Vitamin C, Zinc and boosted immune systems for flu and colds.

Nuremberg Code #3: Base Experiments on Results of Animal Experimentation and Natural History of Disease

This gene therapy skipped animal testing and went straight to human trials. In mRNA research that Pfizer used – a candidate study on mRNA with rhesus macaques monkeys using BNT162b2 mRNA and in that study all the monkeys developed pulmonary inflammation but the researchers considered the risk low as these were young healthy monkeys from the age of 2-4. Israel has used Pfizer and the International Court of Law has accepted a claim for 80% of the recipients having pulmonary inflammation from being injected with this gene-therapy. Despite this alarming development Pfizer proceeded to develop their mRNA for Covid without animal testing.

Nuremberg Code #4: Avoid All Unnecessary Suffering and Injury

Since the rollout of the experiment and listed under the CDC VAERS reporting system over 4,000 deaths and 50,000 vaccine injuries have been reported in America. In the EU over 7,000 deaths and 365,000 vaccine injuries have been reported. This is a grievous violation of this code.

Nuremberg Code #5: No Experiment to be Conducted if There's Reason to Think Injury or Death Will Occur

See #4, based on fact-based medical data this gene-therapy is causing death and injury. Past research on mRNA also shows several risks that have been ignored for this current trial gene-experiment. A 2002 study on SARS-CoV-1 spike proteins showed they cause inflammation, immunopathology, blood clots, and impede Angiotensin 2 expression. This experiment forces the body to produce this spike-protein inheriting all these risks.

Nuremberg Code #6: Risk Should Never Exceed the Benefit

Covid-19 has a 98-99% recovery rate. The vaccine injuries, deaths and adverse side-effects of mRNA gene-therapy far exceed this risk. The use of "leaky" vaccines was banned for agriculture use by the US and EU due to the Marek Chicken study that shows 'hot-viruses' and variants emerge… making the disease even more deadly. Yet, this has been ignored for human use by the CDC knowing fully the risk of new deadlier variants emerge from leaky vaccinations. The CDC is fully aware that the use of leaky vaccines facilitates the emergence of hot (deadlier)strains. Yet they've ignored this when it comes to human

Nuremberg Code #7: Preparation Must Be Made Against Even Remote Possibility of Injury, Disability or Death

There were no preparations made. This gene therapy skipped animal trials. The pharmaceutical companies' own Phase 3 human clinical trials will not conclude until 2022 /2023. These vaccines were approved under an Emergency Use only act and forced on a misinformed public. They are NOT FDA-approved.

Nuremberg Code #8: Experiment Must Be Conducted by Scientifically Qualified Persons

Politicians, media and actors claiming that this is a safe and effective vaccine are not qualified. Propaganda is not medical science. Many retail outlets such as Walmart & drive-through vaccine centers are not qualified to administer experimental medical gene-therapies to the uninformed public.

Nuremberg Code #9: Anyone Must Have the Freedom to Bring the Experiment to an End At Any Time

Despite the outcry of over 85,000 doctors, nurses, virologists and epidemiologists – the experiment is not being ended. In fact, there are currently many attempts to change laws in order to force vaccine compliance. This includes mandatory and forced vaccinations. Experimental 'update' shots are planned for every 6 months without any recourse to the growing number of deaths and injuries already caused by this experiment. These 'update' shots will be administered without any clinical trials. Hopefully this new Nuremberg Trial will put an end to this crime against humanity.

Nuremberg Code #10: The Scientist Must Bring the Experiment to an End At Any Time if There's Probable Cause of it Resulting in Injury or Death

It is clear in the statistical reporting data that this experiment is resulting in death and injury yet all the politicians, drug companies and so-called experts are not making any attempt to stop this gene-therapy experiment from inflicting harm on a misinformed public.

What can you do to help put an end to this crime against humanity? Share this information. Hold your politicians, media, doctors and nurses accountable – that if they are complicit in this crime against humanity they too are subject to the laws set forth in the Geneva Convention and Nuremberg Code and can be tried, found guilty and put to death. Legal proceedings are moving forward, evidence has been collected and a large growing body of experts are sounding the alarm.

Introduction

The judgment by the war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg laid down 10 standards to which physicians must conform when carrying out experiments on human subjects in a new code that is now accepted worldwide.

This judgment established a new standard of ethical medical behaviour for the post World War II human rights era. Amongst other requirements, this document enunciates the requirement of voluntary informed consent of the human subject. The principle of voluntary informed consent protects the right of the individual to control his own body.

This code also recognizes that the risk must be weighed against the expected benefit, and that unnecessary pain and suffering must be avoided.

This code recognizes that doctors should avoid actions that injure human patients.

The principles established by this code for medical practice now have been extended into general codes of medical ethics.

The Nuremberg Code (1947)

Permissible Medical Experiments

The great weight of the evidence before us to effect that certain types of medical experiments on human beings, when kept within reasonably well-defined bounds, conform to the ethics of the medical profession generally. The protagonists of the practice of human experimentation justify their views on the basis that such experiments yield results for the good of society that are unprocurable by other methods or means of study. All agree, however, that certain basic principles must be observed in order to satisfy moral, ethical and legal concepts:

1. The voluntary consent of the human subject is absolutely essential. This means that the person involved should have legal capacity to give consent; should be so situated as to be able to exercise free power of choice, without the intervention of any element of force, fraud, deceit, duress, overreaching, or other ulterior form of constraint or coercion; and should have sufficient knowledge and comprehension of the elements of the subject matter involved as to enable him to make an understanding and enlightened decision. This latter element requires that before the acceptance of an affirmative decision by the experimental subject there should be made known to him the nature, duration, and purpose of the experiment; the method and means by which it is to be conducted; all inconveniences and hazards reasonably to be expected; and the effects upon his health or person which may possibly come from his participation in the experiment.
